British Greet Top 2

Kremlin Leaders Seek 'Friendly Relations'

LONDON (AP) — Soviet Russia's leaders, Nikolai Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev, came to Britain Wednesday proclaiming themselves good neighbors British crowds greeted them with thin cheers, some boos and spoofing curiosity.

"Welcome Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier," said a placard hoisted by a group of youth. That got a big hand.

Banner bearers had an active day.

One paced back and forth with a placard saying "God is Love." Nobody paid any attention. Two fussy men hawked booklets labeled "Bulganin and Khrushchev, Their Life and Works," at sixpence—seven cents—to an indifferent public.

Correct

Officially, things were diplomatically correct.

Prime Minister Eden and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd dined with Bulganin and Khrushchev Wednesday night at Claridges, the luxury hotel where the Russians have taken royal suites on the first floor.

There they began informal talks on East-West issues. Official conferences start Thursday on such problems as German reunification, disarmament and the middle east.

Prime Minister Eden, a diplomat from way back, was correct and elegant as he met Bulganin, the goateed Soviet premier; and roly-poly Khrushchev, the Communist party boss, at London's smoke-blackened Victoria station. He voiced a desire for serious talks with the Russians on international problems.

"In greeting, I express the hope that we shall, by our work and by our decision, improve relations between our countries and our peoples," he said.

Bulganin, beaming broadly, replied through an interpreter. He extended greetings and declared "the Soviet government seeks to have friendly relations with Britain as well as the United States, France and other countries."

"The social and political systems in our countries are different," Bulganin said. "But, provided there is reasonable understanding of the fact that we have to live together on one planet, differences in political structure should not be a hindrance to us living as good neighbors, co-operating actively to improve our relations."

Later, Bulganin and Khrushchev took the "milk run" tour around London's traditional sights, including the Tower of London, Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's cathedral and Trafalgar Square.

Police motorcycle outriders preceded them. Their every move took place inside a police security net described as the greatest in British peacetime history. The police arrested four persons, including a French journalist, on minor charges.

Signs of protest and anger over the Russians' 10-day visit cropped up in England's industrial midlands—the home now of thousands of refugees from Communist East Europe. Khrushchev and Bulganin will visit that area later.

Church Women Pick Mrs. Leonard

OMAHA (AP) — Mrs. M. C. Leonard of Lincoln Wednesday was elected president of the Nebraska Council of United Church Women. She succeeded Mrs. Harry Coggins of Aurora, who held the post three years.

Other officers named at the group's convention here were Mrs. John Wichelt of Kearney, first vice president; Mrs. Roy Marshall of Omaha, second vice president; Mrs. Earl Growcock of Fremont, secretary, and Mrs. E. E. Zalman of Hastings, re-elected treasurer.

Kellys' Girl Grace Now Real Princess

. . . Prince And Bride Attend Opera

By PRESTON GROVER

MONTE CARLO, (Thursday) (AP)—Freshly married in Monaco's ancient warrior castle, Prince Rainier III and Princess Grace took their first night out as man and wife at a flashy ballet gala.

Today they will be married finally as Roman Catholics in the cathedral.

Ten hours after their civil wedding yesterday under an 8,000-candlepower floodlit glare in the red-gold throne room, they drove in the evening to Monaco's ornate Opera House in their wedding gift Rolls-Royce.

Shouts of Bravo! from onlookers surrounding the entrance greeted their arrival.

Obviously tired but elegant, the Prince and his bride paused briefly on the steps to acknowledge the crowd's cheers.

For the opera, the former Miss Kelly wore a light grey dress with a diamond tiara on her beautiful blonde hair. Around her neck was a necklace of diamonds a half-inch thick.

The Prince was in white tie and tails, with a chesty spread of decorations.

As they walked arm and arm into the building, the Princess whispered to a friend:

"Gee, my feet hurt."

The richly dressed spectators stood, bowed and applauded as the couple entered the royal box, high above the audience. The Prince bowed back.

The program for the gala ranged all the way from ballet with Margot Fonteyn and Michael Soames, stars of London's Sadlers' Wells Ballet, to a performance of American bandleader Stan Kenton's modernist, jazzy "Homage to a Princess."

After the show they went separate ways for the last time. The Prince drove Grace back to the palace. He went on to his villa at St. Jean-Cap Ferrat, just outside Monaco in France.

Pageantry

Just before noon today, Grace, wearing a fabulous white silk gown studded with pearls will take her marriage vows at the cathedral amid all the pageantry her husband's realm can muster.

After more ceremonials, the Prince and princess will sail on a Mediterranean honeymoon in Rainier's yacht.

The civil wedding ceremony yesterday was brief and dignified. Surrounded by families, friends, and television cameras, Grace and the Prince allowed neither tears nor kisses to mar the regal decorum.

"It is seldom done," she said of kissing at civil ceremonies, and, she added, "often not in religious marriages either."

3 Blazes Believed To Be Set

Farm Barns, City Buildings Involved

Three fires in the Lincoln area Wednesday night were believed by authorities to have been set.

The three blazes, all fairly evenly spaced in time, burned two vacant farm barns to the ground and gutted two small buildings in Lincoln.

Sheriff's officers said both rural fires showed every indication of being set. They investigated a fire 1½ miles north of the Woodlawn Service Station on Highways 2 and 34 where a vacant barn was destroyed.

The barn, owned by the Woodlawn Dairy, was a complete loss, according to L. E. Frost, manager of the dairy. It was empty.

Sheriff's officers also probed a fire which leveled an abandoned barn on the Glenn Sturdy farm south of Lincoln.

However, spectators, attracted by the leaping flames, made it impossible to locate clues there, the sheriff's office said.

Firemen were also hampered reached in the scene because of a heavy flow of sightseers enroute to the scene. When firemen arrived the building was a complete loss.

Lincoln Call

About 11 p.m., nearly two hours after the first fire was reported, Lincoln firemen were summoned to 7th and Charleston.

Another fire, which a fire official said looked like it had been set, gutted two small buildings including a double garage and demolished a small connecting structure. Fire apparently started in the connecting structure, the official said.

The buildings were owned by Mrs. C. Krebeck of 1203 No. 7th. Mrs. Krebeck said all the buildings were empty.

Meanwhile Cass County Sheriff Tom Solomon reported two suspicious fires in his area during the past two weeks. Both fires, he said, had been started after kerosene was poured. The two blazes—about a week apart—involved a corn crib and a house near Greenwood.

Neither Cass County fire caused severe damage, said Solomon. Both were discovered quickly, he said.

The sheriff said he thought the fires were connected, and pointed to the fact that each started about 9 p.m.

Warmer, Sunny Weather Forecast

Sunny skies and slowly rising temperatures were slated for the state Thursday, with highs to be in the 60s.

Wednesday's high readings ranged from 56 at Sidney to 64 at the Lincoln airbase. Early Wednesday morning temperatures fell as low as 15 at Sidney while Lincoln's was 32.

No precipitation was reported Wednesday nor expected Thursday.

Trial Conflicting On Interrogation

'Confession' Ruled Admissible; Reid Denies Force Used

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The "confession" by which Darrel F. Parker related the strangling of his 22-year-old wife last December was admitted in evidence in the forester's first-degree murder trial Wednesday.

Judge Polk's ruling, in effect, left the decision of the competency of the "confession" to the jury.

Immediately afterwards, the trial resumed before the jury and testimony appeared to conflict with accounts made by Parker while he was on the stand.

Testimony of two of the nation's top criminologists preceeded District Judge John Polk's ruling on the admissibility of the "confession."

The jurors had been excluded from the courtroom for a day and a half while the statement was considered by the court.

One criminologist was Dr. Douglas M. Kelley, widely-known University of California psychiatrist and professor of criminology, who said, in effect, that Parker's personality and condition was such as to provoke a false confession.

The other was John E. Reid, the Chicago criminolgoist and lie detector expert who took Parker's signed statement one week after Nancy Parker's strangled, gagged and bound body was found at the Parker home by the 24-year-old defendant, on Dec. 14.

Wednesday afternoon the seven men and five women returned to the jury box in the jam-packed Lancaster District Courtroom and the state's presentation resumed with Reid on the stand.

No Emotion

Reid testified that Parker broke down and cried early in the interrogation on Dec. 21 but "showed no emotion whatsoever" thereafter.

As he testified in the earlier "trial within a trial," Reid denied that he had used threats, promises, or inducements in obtaining the "confession."

He said he did not strike Parker, grab him by the hair, jerk his head up, tell Parker he was "going to fry," promise that if Parker confessed he could help him, or tell Parker he "looked like a criminal."

In these statements, Reid's testimony ran into head-on conflict with Parker's own testimony given Tuesday. There were other points of conflict.

Felt Strongly

Reid, who began questioning Parker about noon on Dec. 21, said that by 2:30 or 2:45 p.m., "I felt pretty strongly he killed his wife."

It was shortly before 8 p.m. that Parker first admitted he strangled his wife, Reid testified.

Thereafter, a shorthand report of questions and answers was made and Parker signed it around 12:30 a.m., he said.

In the statement, Parker related he "got mad" when his wife refused his after-breakfast advances, removed her glasses, struck her and then strangled her with a cord and tried to set the scene as rape and robbery.

Concessions

On a grilling cross-examination by Defense Attorney Max Towle, Reid conceded he had "put my hand under his (Parker's) chin," said, "Darrel look at me," and "stroked his hair like some animal."

But "I didn't use force." Reid asserted. In stroking the hair, "I only wanted to get a friendly attitude."

Reid testified he never wanted to give Parker the impression that he (Reid) "was the master of the situation."

Reid admitted, to Towle's questioning that he had told Parker that Nancy's missing watch was "important to the state" for its case. The watch, which Mrs. Parker was believed to be wearing when she was slain, has never been found.

Reid said Parkers told him he "threw it (the watch) in a field."

Towle then read a passage from a textbook co-authored by Reid and Prof. Fred E. Inbau, which the defense attorney said advocated just the opposite.

Followed Book

On other passages read to him, Reid testified he had followed them in his interrogation of Parker and the lie detector examination.

Also advocated by Reid's book was that it is important to have as much information as possible about the crime and suspect so as to give the interrogator a "psychological advantage," Towle pointed out.

In apparent contrast was Reid's testimony that local authorities had briefed him, but the briefing was "only very sketchy," Reid said.

Reid, on cross-examination, agreed he was "changing my story" concerning the manner in which statement corrections were suggested to Parker.

"I was proven wrong" by Assistant Police Chief Eugene Master's testimony that a "slip knot" was changed to a "double-bowline" during the statement's reading, Reid said.

Reid also testified a suggested correction for a misspelled word was given him by County Attorney Elmer Scheele. Reid said Parker,

JUDGE JOHN L. POLK . . . ruled Parker confession could be presented to jury.

JOHN E. REID . . . he testified on statement he took from Parker.

Paul Gilbert, Nebraska Game, Parks Head, Dies At Age 45

Paul Gilbert, executive secretary of the Nebraska Game, Forestation and Parks Commission since June, 1942, died Wednesday afternoon. He had been hospitalized since March 15.

Mr. Gilbert, 45, of 1615 So. 44th, has been given a great deal of the credit for the tremendous growth of the Game Commission since he took the position of secretary, and was known as one of the most well-liked men at the State House.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday at First Presbyterian Church, Dr. C. Vin White officiating.

He was born in Lincoln, and received his B. S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Nebraska. He received his M.S. in zoology in 1936.

Prior to taking the State Game Commission post, he was head of the biology department and dean of men at McCook Junior College.

He had many hobbies for which he was known, including snake and animal collecting, photography and painting.

Changes Made

One of the major changes made in the Game Commission since Mr. Gilbert took the post was the re-organization of the department to establish districts, aimed at bringing the public and the department closer together.

Several new departments were added, including education and publicity, and lands and waters. Mr. Gilbert was considered a foremost authority on conservation education, and spoke at many national meetings.

Research on fisheries and predators was begun during his tenure in the office, and the largest walleye pike hatchery in the world was constructed at North Platte.

New lakes and recreation grounds were opened, and more kinds of game and fish were taken in the state than ever before. Open seasons on white bass, quail and deer were held for the first time during the 14 years Mr. Gilbert held the post.

'Better Relations'

He placed emphasis on promoting better relationships between the farmer and the hunter, and was known for his love of the "freckle-nose" youngster.

Gilbert was instrumental in organizing youth groups, introducing conservation programs in 4-H Clubs and initiating children's fishing contests in the state.

PAUL GILBERT

He was an active hunter and fisherman, and served on many local and national wildlife committees.

He was president of the Central Flyway Council; past president of the Midwest Game Commissioners Association; honorary curator of the University of Nebraska museum; member of Craftsmen Masonic Lodge; First Presbyterian Church, and was active in the Izaak Walton League.

He was an honorary member of many national and state wildlife groups, and for many years had edited the Commission's "Outdoor Nebraska" magazine. He produced a television show and weekly radio program on outdoor Nebraska.

He was a member of the Boy Scout Council.

Surviving are his wife, Marian; and a daughter, Anne.

Soviet Joins Setup

Peaceful Uses Of A-Energy Stressed

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia agreed with the United States and 10 other countries Wednesday night to join in setting up an international agency charged with developing the peaceful uses of atomic energy around the world.

A communique released by the State Department announced that a 12-nation conference which began here Feb. 27 had "unanimously adopted" the text of a charter for a proposed "international atomic energy agency." The charter will be presented to an 84-nation conference which will meet at United Nations headquarters in New York in September.

The agreement brings near realization an "atoms for peace" proposal made by President Eisenhower to the United Nations in December 1953. He suggested that countries possessing atomic resources should contribute materials to an international pool which would then be used for the development of atomic power plants in countries around the world.

Russian Concessions

Russia is reported to have made concessions on several points—agreeing that the projected agency would not be subjected to the big power veto in the U.N. Security Council and dropping an early proposal for the inclusion of Red China in the new organization.

The charter adopted will be made public in a few days, after it is officially reported by the delegates here to their home governments. Meanwhile it was learned that it provides for this basic machinery:

23 Nations

1. A board of governors composed of 23 nations. This represents an expansion over a 16-nation board tentatively provided in earlier drafts. India and some smaller nations are understood to have insisted on maximum representation for countries without atomic resources.

2. A director general to be selected by the board of governors.

3. A staff of scientific experts and other necessary personnel serving under the director general. One section of the staff would have the task of constantly inspecting atomic energy operations and keeping close check on the supplies of atomic material available to the agency to prevent any diversion for military purposes.

Safeguarded

4. A weighted voting procedure which would protect the interests of the major atomic countries in decisions reached by the board. Informants said that this is not in any sense an adoption of the veto principle but rather a controlled majority system which would assure recognition for the special interests of the atomic powers.

5. A relationship with the United Nations to be worked out in detail by the board of governors. The agency would take into account, in making its policy, resolutions addressed to it by the United Nations and would make reports to the General Assembly and the Security Council but would not be under their operating control.

The jurors had been excluded from the courtroom for a day and a half while the statement was considered by the court.

One criminologist was Dr. Douglas M. Kelley, widely-known University of California psychiatrist and professor of criminology, who said, in effect, that Parker's personality and condition was such as to provoke a false confession.

The other was John E. Reid, the Chicago criminolgoist and lie detector expert who took Parker's signed statement one week after Nancy Parker's strangled, gagged and bound body was found at the Parker home by the 24-year-old defendant, on Dec. 14.

Wednesday afternoon the seven men and five women returned to the jury box in the jam-packed Lancaster District Courtroom and the state's presentation resumed with Reid on the stand.

No Emotion

Reid testified that Parker broke down and cried early in the interrogation on Dec. 21 but "showed no emotion whatsoever" thereafter.

As he testified in the earlier "trial within a trial," Reid denied that he had used threats, promises, or inducements in obtaining the "confession."

He said he did not strike Parker, grab him by the hair, jerk his head up, tell Parker he was "going to fry," promise that if Parker confessed he could help him, or tell Parker he "looked like a criminal."

In these statements, Reid's testimony ran into head-on conflict with Parker's own testimony given Tuesday. There were other points of conflict.

Felt Strongly

Reid, who began questioning Parker about noon on Dec. 21, said that by 2:30 or 2:45 p.m., "I felt pretty strongly he killed his wife."

It was shortly before 8 p.m. that Parker first admitted he strangled his wife, Reid testified.

Thereafter, a shorthand report of questions and answers was made and Parker signed it around 12:30 a.m., he said.

In the statement, Parker related he "got mad" when his wife refused his after-breakfast advances, removed her glasses, struck her and then strangled her with a cord and tried to set the scene as rape and robbery.

Concessions

On a grilling cross-examination by Defense Attorney Max Towle, Reid conceded he had "put my hand under his (Parker's) chin," said, "Darrel look at me," and "stroked his hair like some animal."

But " didn't use force." Reid asserted. In stroking the hair, "I only wanted to get a friendly attitude."

Reid testified he never wanted to give Parker the impression that he (Reid) "was the master of the situation."

Reid admitted, to Towle's questioning that he had told Parker that Nancy's missing watch was "important to the state" for its case. The watch, which Mrs. Parker was believed to be wearing when she was slain, has never been found.

Reid said Parkers told him he "threw it (the watch) in a field."

Towle then read a passage from a textbook co-authored by Reid and Prof. Fred E. Inbau, which the defense attorney said advocated just the opposite.

Followed Book

On other passages read to him, Reid testified he had followed them in his interrogation of Parker and the lie detector examination.

Also advocated by Reid's book was that it is important to have as much information as possible about the crime and suspect so as to give the interrogator a "psychological advantage," Towle pointed out.

In apparent contrast was Reid's testimony that local authorities had briefed him, but the briefing was "only very sketchy," Reid said.

Reid, on cross-examination, agreed he was "changing my story" concerning the manner in which statement corrections were suggested to Parker.

"I was proven wrong" by Assistant Police Chief Eugene Master's testimony that a "slip knot" was changed to a "double-bowline" during the statement's reading, Reid said.

Reid also testified a suggested correction for a misspelled word was given him by County Attorney Elmer Scheele. Reid said Parker,

JUDGE JOHN L. POLK . . . ruled Parker confession could be presented to jury.

JOHN E. REID . . . he testified on statement he took from Parker.

Paul Gilbert, Nebraska Game, Parks Head, Dies At Age 45

Paul Gilbert, executive secretary of the Nebraska Game, Forestation and Parks Commission since June, 1942, died Wednesday afternoon. He had been hospitalized since March 15.

Mr. Gilbert, 45, of 1615 So. 44th, has been given a great deal of the credit for the tremendous growth of the Game Commission since he took the position of secretary, and was known as one of the most well-liked men at the State House.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday at First Presbyterian Church, Dr. C. Vin White officiating.

He was born in Lincoln, and received his B. S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Nebraska. He received his M.S. in zoology in 1936.

Prior to taking the State Game Commission post, he was head of the biology department and dean of men at McCook Junior College.

He had many hobbies for which he was known, including snake and animal collecting, photography and painting.

Changes Made

One of the major changes made in the Game Commission since Mr. Gilbert took the post was the re-organization of the department to establish districts, aimed at bringing the public and the department closer together.

Several new departments were added, including education and publicity, and lands and waters. Mr. Gilbert was considered a foremost authority on conservation education, and spoke at many national meetings.

Research on fisheries and predators was begun during his tenure in the office, and the largest walleye pike hatchery in the world was constructed at North Platte.

New lakes and recreation grounds were opened, and more kinds of game and fish were taken in the state than ever before. Open seasons on white bass, quail and deer were held for the first time during the 14 years Mr. Gilbert held the post.

'Better Relations'

He placed emphasis on promoting better relationships between the farmer and the hunter, and was known for his love of the "freckle-nose" youngster.

Gilbert was instrumental in organizing youth groups, introducing conservation programs in 4-H Clubs and initiating children's fishing contests in the state.

PAUL GILBERT

He was an active hunter and fisherman, and served on many local and national wildlife committees.

He was president of the Central Flyway Council; past president of the Midwest Game Commissioners Association; honorary curator of the University of Nebraska museum; member of Craftsmen Masonic Lodge; First Presbyterian Church, and was active in the Izaak Walton League.

He was an honorary member of many national and state wildlife groups, and for many years had edited the Commission's "Outdoor Nebraska" magazine. He produced a television show and weekly radio program on outdoor Nebraska.

He was a member of the Boy Scout Council.

Surviving are his wife, Marian; and a daughter, Anne.

Soviet Joins Setup

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia agreed with the United States and 10 other countries Wednesday night to join in setting up an international agency charged with developing the peaceful uses of atomic energy around the world.

A communique released by the State Department announced that a 12-nation conference which began here Feb. 27 had "unanimously adopted" the text of a charter for a proposed "international atomic energy agency." The charter will be presented to an 84-nation conference which will meet at United Nations headquarters in New York in September.

The agreement brings near realization an "atoms for peace" proposal made by President Eisenhower to the United Nations in December 1953. He suggested that countries possessing atomic resources should contribute materials to an international pool which would then be used for the development of atomic power plants in countries around the world.

Russian Concessions

Russia is reported to have made concessions on several points—agreeing that the projected agency would not be subjected to the big power veto in the U.N. Security Council and dropping an early proposal for the inclusion of Red China in the new organization.

The charter adopted will be made public in a few days, after it is officially reported by the delegates here to their home governments. Meanwhile it was learned that it provides for this basic machinery:

23 Nations

1. A board of governors composed of 23 nations. This represents an expansion over a 16-nation board tentatively provided in earlier drafts. India and some smaller nations are understood to have insisted on maximum representation for countries without atomic resources.

2. A director general to be selected by the board of governors.

3. A staff of scientific experts and other necessary personnel serving under the director general. One section of the staff would have the task of constantly inspecting atomic energy operations and keeping close check on the supplies of atomic material available to the agency to prevent any diversion for military purposes.

Safeguarded

4. A weighted voting procedure which would protect the interests of the major atomic countries in decisions reached by the board. Informants said that this is not in any sense an adoption of the veto principle but rather a controlled majority system which would assure recognition for the special interests of the atomic powers.

5. A relationship with the United Nations to be worked out in detail by the board of governors. The agency would take into account, in making its policy, resolutions addressed to it by the United Nations and would make reports to the General Assembly and the Security Council but would not be under their operating control.

Demos Credited By Nixon

Pace Is Changed For Prosperity Address

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Nixon, who seldom has had a good word for the Democrats Wednesday night credited them with helping achieve "America's great prosperity"

He still gave Republicans the chief credit

Nixon enraged Democrats, from former President Truman on down with his 1952 campaign year speeches. He was a partisan of the most vigorous type

Hence, it was somewhat of a change of pace for him when he said in a speech prepared for 'the Brand Names Day Dinner.

"We know that, in all fairness, the credit for America's great prosperity today must be shared among Democrats and Republicans, labor leaders and business executives, farmers and city folk alike."

Devoted

This willingness to find merit in the political opposition was in line with the speech with which President Eisenhower opened his 1956 re-election campaign Tuesday night. Eisenhower said Democrats, like Republicans, were patriotically devoted to their country's welfare

While Nixon said it was only fair to share credit for prosperity, he added

"Yet, without in any way detracting from the other factors I have mentioned, I think I can state without fear of contradiction that the philosophy of government that has prevailed in Washington for the last three years has been the most important single factor in producing the good times we enjoy today"

Confession Testimony Differs

The criminologists testified 'purposeful errors' were made in the typing to later 'prove' Parker had read the statement and made corrections

It 'was not done to trap him' the Chicagoan said

In the hearing over the admissibility of the confession the testimony of Parker Reid and Dr Kelley were highlighted

Reid said the statement was obtained 'without abuse of any kind" and was given 'freely and voluntarily

Parker told a story of being shocked and browbeaten into giving it and of having little recollection of what happened during the later hours of Dec 21 when he signed the statement

Dr Kelley testified in effect, he regarded the confession as a false one

He said it was his opinion that Parker that night suffered a 're-active depression of a psychotic type marked by "confusion' acute suspectibility to suggestion and unawareness "of the nature of his reaction'

Dr Kelley said he determined by what he called his psychiatric psychological physical and lie detector examinations of Parker that the 'inconsistencies in his confession" as developed in testimony, "completely support my opinion he was parroting material without knowing it [illegible] was not like a person who would have the details of the crime engraved on his mind"

Dr. Kelley once was chief psychologist and acting chief psychiatrist to the Allied War Crimes Council at the Nuermberg trials, during which he appraised the sanity of some of Germany's top Nazis

Cross-examined on conflicts between testimony of Parker and Reid, Dr Kelley acknowledged he knew Reid well and was thoroughly familiar with Prof Inbau's and Reid's "Lie Detection and Criminal Interrogation, a textbook.

"It's widely used as a standard text' he said Prof Inbau has been in the courtroom since Monday.

Dr. Kelley said the methods used on Parker as Parker related them "are completely opposed" to the methods advocated by Reid

The California psychiatrist appraised Parker as [illegible] tending to be sensitive [illegible] immature . dependent upon his parents and later his wife for guidance and support

Following the tragic death of his wife Parker was functioning at the minimal level [illegible] with the feeling he didn't want to live had nothing to live for' Dr Kelley said

When the trial resumes Thursday morning Reid was expected to give testimony on redirect examination on the methods advocated by his book and those he used in questioning Parker

Don't Cuss Farmer For Bread Price Jump—Ag. Dept.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Don't be too hasty in blaming farmers when your bread prices go up the Agriculture Department advised consumers Wednesday

In a study on bread prices and costs the department said hourly earnings of workers in the milling and baking industries have more to do with bread price increases than do farm prices of wheat

The department said that [illegible] per cent.

It said that the price of wheat [illegible] making bread rose [illegible] a half cent in that period The remaining 6.8 cent rise was said to have reflected higher [illegible] processing [illegible] of which labor was a major item

Medics-Dentists Pay Hikes Voted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed [illegible] special pay raises for medical and dental officers in the armed forces The action is designed to encourage the officers to stay in service

The bill now goes back to the House for consideration of Senate amendments

It would boost from $100 a month to $150 the special pay now allowed medical and dental officers after two years of service to $200 a month after six years and to $250 a month after 10 years.

Two of the injured were in critical condition from severe burns suffered in the blaze that skeletonized the two floors of the St George Hotel, inflicting damage estimated at $40 000

Eight of the firemen and two of the policemen were among the persons treated for burns smoke inhalation and other injuries

Burned to death were Willis H Shaw, 62, and Dixie Mae Palmer about 40 who were among the 70 guests sleeping in the hotel when the fire broke out Shaw's body was discovered at the window of his fourth floor room Miss Palmer was found dead in her room, also on the fourth story

Stevenson Blasts Handling Of News By Administration

PITTSBURGH (INS) — Adlai Stevenson continued his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination with an attack on the handling of news by the national administration

The 1952 standard bearer told the Pittsburgh Press Club that the Eisenhower administration has manipulated news to suit its own interests

He declared

Invariably this manipulation is revealed as having been an attempt to cover up some administration blunder or to put a good face on a bad situation for partisan political advantage

"I am hoping to do mighty well I have more than a political interest in Pennsylvania I have great sentimental interest since my mother's family was born in this state"

Nixon enraged Democrats, from former President Truman on down, with his 1952 campaign year speeches. He was a partisan of the most vigorous type.

Hence, it was somewhat of a change of pace for him when he said, in a speech prepared for "the Brand Names Day Dinner":

"We know that, in all fairness, the credit for America's great prosperity today must be shared among Democrats and Republicans, labor leaders and business executives, farmers and city folk alike."

Devoted

This willingness to find merit in the political opposition was in line with the speech with which President Eisenhower opened his 1956 re-election campaign Tuesday night. Eisenhower said Democrats, like Republicans, were patriotically devoted to their country's welfare.

While Nixon said it was only fair to share credit for prosperity, he added:

"Yet, without in any way detracting from the other factors I have mentioned, I think I can state without fear of contradiction that the philosophy of government that has prevailed in Washington for the last three years has been the most important single factor in producing the good times we enjoy today."

at "my suggestion," then corrected "genes" to "jeans."

The criminologists testified "purposeful errors" were made in the typing to later "prove" Parker had read the statement and made corrections.

It "was not done to trap him," the Chicagoan said.

In the hearing over the admissibility of the "confession," the testimony of Parker, Reid and Dr. Kelley were highlighted.

Reid said the statement was obtained "without abuse of any kind" and was given "freely and voluntarily."

Parker told a story of being shocked and browbeaten into giving it and of having little recollection of what happened during the later hours of Dec. 21 when he signed the statement.

Dr. Kelley testified, in effect, he regarded the confession as a false one.

He said it was his opinion that Parker that night suffered a "reactive depression of a psychotic type" marked by "confusion," acute suspectibility to suggestion and unawareness "of the nature of his reaction."

Dr. Kelley said he determined by what he called his psychiatric, psychological, physical and lie detector examinations of Parker that the "inconsistencies in his confession" as developed in testimony, "completely support my opinion he was parroting material without knowing it . . . was not like a person who would have the details of the crime engraved on his mind."

Dr. Kelley once was chief psychologist and acting chief psychiatrist to the Allied War Crimes Council at the Nuermberg trials, during which he appraised the sanity of some of Germany's top Nazis.

Cross-examined on conflicts between testimony of Parker and Reid, Dr. Kelley acknowledged he knew Reid well and was thoroughly familiar with Prof. Inbau's and Reid's "Lie Detection and Criminal Interrogation," a textbook.

"It's widely used as a standard text," he said. Prof. Inbau has been in the courtroom since Monday.

Dr. Kelley said the methods used on Parker as Parker related them "are completely opposed" to the methods advocated by Reid.

The California psychiatrist appraised Parker as "intelligent . . . tending to be sensitive . . . immature . . . dependent upon his parents, and later his wife, for guidance and support."

Following the tragic death of his wife, Parker was "functioning at the minimal level . . . with the feeling he didn't want to live; had nothing to live for," Dr. Kelley said.

When the trial resumes Thursday morning, Reid was expected to give testimony on re-direct examination on the methods advocated by his book and those he used in questioning Parker.

Don't Cuss Farmer For Bread Price Jump—Ag. Dept.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Don't be too hasty in blaming farmers when your bread prices go up, the Agriculture Department advised consumers Wednesday.

In a study on bread prices and costs, the department said hourly earnings of workers in the milling and baking industries have more to do with bread price increases than do farm prices of wheat.

The department said that during the last 10 years, the average retail price of bread has increased 7.3 cents a pound, or 70 per cent.

It said that the price of wheat and all other ingredients used in making bread rose only a half cent in that period. The remaining 6.8-cent rise was said to have reflected higher marketing and processing costs, of which labor was a major item.

Medics-Dentists Pay Hikes Voted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a bill providing special pay raises for medical and dental officers in the armed forces. The action is designed to encourage the officers to stay in service.

The bill now goes back to the House for consideration of Senate amendments.

It would boost from $100 a month to $150 the special pay now allowed medical and dental officers after two years of service; to $200 a month after six years, and to $250 a month after 10 years.

2 Dead, 22 Are Hurt In Frisco Fire

. . . Blaze Believed Set

SAN FRANCISCO (INS) — Two persons were burned to death and 22 others injured when a fire, believed set by an arsonist, swept through the upper two floors of a four-story hotel in downtown San Francisco.

Two of the injured were in critical condition from severe burns suffered in the blaze that skeletonized the two floors of the St. George Hotel, inflicting damage estimated at $40,000.

The tragedy might have turned into disaster, had it not been for the heroism of firemen and police officers. They were credited with limiting the death toll by a series of spectacular rescues on aerial ladders and shoulder-carries through smoke-filled corridors.

Eight of the firemen and two of the policemen were among the persons treated for burns, smoke inhalation and other injuries.

Burned to death were Willis H. Shaw, 62, and Dixie Mae Palmer, about 40, who were among the 70 guests sleeping in the hotel when the fire broke out. Shaw's body was discovered at the window of his fourth-floor room. Miss Palmer was found dead in her room, also on the fourth story.

Fire marshal Carl Kruger, chief of the arson squad, said the three-alarm fire started at the foot of a second-floor stairway.

Kruger said he is seeking, for interrogation, a woman who was evicted three weeks ago from a room near the site of the blaze. The marshal declared the fire was apparently the work of an arsonist. He reported that two small incendiary fires had been put out in the same hotel two months ago.

Stevenson Blasts Handling Of News By Administration

PITTSBURGH (INS) — Adlai Stevenson continued his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination with an attack on the handling of news by the national administration.

The 1952 standard-bearer told the Pittsburgh Press Club that the Eisenhower administration has manipulated news to suit its own interests.

He declared:

Invariably this manipulation is revealed as having been in an attempt to cover up some administration blunder or to put a good face on a bad situation for partisan political advantage."

Asked by newsmen how he expects to fare in the Pennsylvania primary next Tuesday, he replied:

"I am hoping to do mighty well. I have more than a political interest in Pennsylvania. I have great sentimental interest since my mother's family was born in this state."

Stevenson's will be the only name on the Democratic primary ballot. He has the support of the Democratic state organization.

Radio, Television To Carry Ike Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's major foreign policy speech Saturday night will be broadcast "live" by all radio networks and by the CBS television network.

The White House announced that Eisenhower will speak for 30 minutes starting at 9 p.m. CST. He will address the American Society of Newspaper Editors at the Statler Hotel here.

In addition to the live telecast by CBS a filmed version of the address will be carried later in the evening — 10 p.m. CST — by NBC.

Omahan Held; Stabbing Fatal

OMAHA (AP)—Andrew Bedford, 42, Omaha, was stabbed to death Wednesday night by Richard I. Cureton, 39, Omaha, police said. Officers quoted Cureton as saying he acted after being frightened.

Cureton was quoted by police as saying he met a man in a bar, and agreed to cut the man's hair. They went to a nearby residence and Cureton said he began the hair cutting job. As he worked, Bedford came up behind him and "touched" him on the back of the neck "with something," he told police.

Cureton said he then turned and "stabbed" Bedford. He fled but was identified by two witnesses and later found hiding in the bleachers at an amateur ball park.

Prentice Day, 21, Gets Life Sentence In Airman Slaying

MADIILL, Okla. (INS)—Prentice Frank Day, termed "as bad as any mad dog ever turned loose in this country," pleaded guilty to a charge of murdering an Illinois airman and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

District Judge William J. Monroe, who pronounced sentence at Madill, made a part of the record his recommendation that Day never be pardoned or paroled as long as he lives.

The 21-year-old San Antonio, Tex., man described from the witness stand how airman Roger C. Timm, 20, of Evanston, Ill., gave him a ride last Feb. 13 near Rolla, Mo., and how he shot him to death with a .32-caliber pistol early the next morning at a roadside park near Madill. The body of the airman, who was enroute to a new assignment at Abilene, Tex., Air Force Base, was found in a ditch three miles from the murder scene on Feb. 22.

U.S. Opens Door For Sale Of Weapons To Syria

Other Mideast Deals Seen

TOKYO (INS) — The United States opened the door for the sale of undetermined amounts of "defensive weapons" made in Japan under U. S. license to Syria and possibly other Middle East nations.

A Syrian purchasing mission in Japan has been lining up orders with several vast Japanese munitions firms, all of which produce arms on licenses from the U.S.

These firms, in turn, have approached U. S. authorities in Japan through an organization called the "Japan Procurement Agency" — for permission to start producing for Syria.

The U. S. Embassy in Tokyo, while stating that it has no information that "Japan has firm orders from Syria," made the following statement:

Conditions

"The embassy here has indicated to the Japanese government that under certain conditions, permission would be granted for use of U. S. specifications for such an order."

This was interpreted by Japanese officials as providing a go-ahead to ease the government's ban on the flow of arms to the Middle East. The Japanese government heretofore has kept a tight clamp on issuance of necessary export licenses.

Virtually all arms made in Japan are under U. S. license. Japanese firms cannot make munitions for foreign countries without specific American permission.

Japanese munitions firms are set up to make the following arms: 60 mm., 81 mm. and 4.2 inch mortars; machine - guns; rifles and automatic rifles; hand-grenades: and bullets and shells of various sizes.

Medium Tanks

In addition, the munitions industry started turning out medium tanks for their own army.

The Japanese munitions industry is practically at a standstill now, however, and in danger of going out of business in some cases. They have been looking for trade.

An American source said there was no contradiction in the offer to approve use of U. S. licenses for Middle East arms "under certain conditions" and stated American policy on shipments to the tension-filled Middle East.

He said that obviously the U.S. would approve manufacture for Syria or any other Middle East country only if they were "defensive weapons" and if the size of the orders were "reasonable."

These were apparently the "certain conditions" under which U.S. approval would be given.

'Required'

The embassy spokesman said that U.S. permission "is required for use by Japan of U. S. specifications for manufacture of munitions for export."

He pointed out that even if U.S. permission in certain cases is to be given — as indicated— that "the ultimate shipment from Japan of munitions requires export licenses from the Japanese government."

The foreign office in Tokyo has had its ban on sales to the Middle East "under constant study" and it was now assumed that they would start moving to take advantage of the new U. S. position.

The embassy stressed, however, that the U.S. has so far approved no specific sales and claimed it had no information of definite requests from Syria.

Swindler To Be Replaced As NU Journalism Head

By DEL HARDING
Star Staff Writer

Dr. William F. Swindler will be replaced next year as director of the University of Nebraska School of Journalism.

Dr. Swindler

This was confirmed Wednesday at a round-table discussion between University Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin and members of the school's Student Council. Dr. Hardin said three prospective new directors have been interviewed on the NU campus.

Dr. Swindler has served as director since 1946. He is a graduate of Washington University of St. Louis (Mo.), and has taught journalism at the University of Missouri and the University of Idaho, where he served as head of the department.

When contacted Dr. Swindler had no comment other than that he planned to remain at the University.

Dr. Hardin also revealed a new chairman of the University's sociology department probably would be announced "within two weeks." Dr. T. J. Thompson has been heading the department as executive secretary for the last year and a half. Dr. Thompson replaced Dr. James M. Reinhardt, who was given the post of professor of criminology.

Dr. Hardin said Dr. C. Clyde Mitchell Jr. was being replaced as chairman of the agricultural economics department because Ag College Dean W. V. Lambert "felt he (Mitchell) wasn't giving proper attention to research and graduate programs" in his department. Dean Lambert earlier this week issued a statement giving reasons for Dr. Mitchell's demotion and announcing the University was seeking a new department chairman.

Dr. Don Moore, former acting chairman of the physics department, has announced his resignation, effective Sept. 1.

Dr. Hardin said Dr. Mitchell's replacement was a "routine" matter. He said he "fully expected" Mitchell, now studying on a Fulbright Scholarship in Rome, to resume his duties as a full professor of agricultural economics. He held this position in addition to the chairmanship.

Dr. Hardin added he considered Dr. Mitchell a "good teacher."

The chancellor said Dr. Moore's resignation was also "routine," and that he had hoped very much Moore would stay.

Dr. Hardin at first declined to discuss the Mitchell affair, saying "I don't want any more publicity." He said he had been "surprised greatly" by the public response to the announcement of Dr. Mitchell's replacement.

The Nebraskan, the University student newspaper, said Wednesday in an editorial that it had contacted several professors in the ag economics department and that they were "certain in their own minds" that "special interests outside the University" have influenced Mitchell's demotion.

"Is the University weakening to sociological pressures of conformity, is it becoming politically compatible with the special interests in the state, is it seeking to identify itself with the arch conservatism of the traditional Nebraskan?" the editorial asked.

"In short," it concluded, "is the University of Nebraska trying to stifle the independent thought of its more liberal professors?"

Dr. Hardin denied any "pressures" influenced the Mitchell demotion and said he didn't think the number of chairmanship changes was abnormal.

The chancellor said the University's record on academic freedom was "very, very good" and that he intends to live up to it.

Mrs. Tangeman had been ill for some time. She was born in Lincoln.

Canada Gets Nod

Murray, international secretary from Kansas City, Mo., will explain the re-organization of districts. Following the convention, the Fifth district will become the Midwest Region.

A panel discussion on organization of new clubs will be heard, followed by a luncheon at which Dean Walter Militzer of the University of Nebraska, and a Sertoman, will discuss the American Way program, an international project.

A panel discussion on indoctrination of new members will be held in the afternoon, followed by reports of district committee chairmen and club presidents.

Election of district officers will be held in the afternoon, and inauguration and a banquet will be held from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Dean Lambert earlier this week issued a statement giving reasons for Dr. Mitchell's demotion and announcing the University was seeking a new department chairman.

Dr. Don Moore, former acting chairman of the physics department, has announced his resignation, effective Sept. 1.

Dr. Hardin said Dr. Mitchell's replacement was a "routine" matter. He said he "fully expected" Mitchell, now studying on a Fulbright Scholarship in Rome, to resume his duties as a full professor of agricultural economics. He held this position in addition to the chairmanship.

Dr. Hardin added he considered Dr. Mitchell a "good teacher."

The chancellor said Dr. Moore's resignation was also "routine," and that he had hoped very much Moore would stay.

Dr. Hardin at first declined to discuss the Mitchell affair, saying "I don't want any more publicity." He said he had been "surprised greatly" by the public response to the announcement of Dr. Mitchell's replacement.

The Nebraskan, the University stadent newspaper, said Wednesday in an editorial that it had contacted several professors in the ag economics department and that they were "certain in their own minds" that "special interests outside the University" have influenced Mitchell's demotion.

"Is the University weakening to sociological pressures of conformity, is it becoming politically compatible with the special interests in the state, is it seeking to identify itself with the arch conservatism of the traditional Nebraskan?" the editorial asked.

"In short," it concluded, "is the University of Nebraska trying to stifle the independent thought of its more liberal professors?"

Dr. Hardin denied any "pressures" influenced the Mitchell demotion and said he didn't think the number of chairmanship changes was abnormal.

The chancellor said the University's record on academic freedom was "very, very good" and that he intends to live up to it.

Canada Gets Nod

VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP)—The fur trade here is taking a dim view of a London report that bearskin hats of Britain's Guard regiments may be made of Russian grizzly hides. The traditional Canadian black bear supply is dwindling, experts say, but orders can still be filled in Canada.

200 Sertomans To Gather For District Meet

About 200 to 250 Sertomans were expected to attend the fifth district Sertoma convention to be held here Friday and Saturday.

Registration will begin at 3 p.m. Friday, with a dinner and dance scheduled for Friday evening.

International life members will breakfast together at 8 a.m. Saturday, followed by a welcome from City Councilman Pat Ash.

Robert Romans of York, governor of the Fifth District, will preside at the Saturday business session. International Director Lowell Schmidt of Huron, S. D., and Richard C. Murray, international secretary from Kansas City, Mo., will explain the re-organization of districts. Following the convention, the Fifth district will become the Midwest Region.

A panel discussion on organization of new clubs will be heard, followed by a luncheon at which Dean Walter Militzer of the University of Nebraska, and a Sertoman, will discuss the American Way program, an international project.

A panel discussion on indoctrination of new members will be held in the afternoon, followed by reports of district committee chairmen and club presidents.

Election of district officers will be held in the afternoon, and inauguration and a banquet will be held from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Elton G. Vann, international vice president, will speak at the dinner.

The district includes Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota.

She Becomes a Princess

The civil service is over. Our Grace Kelly has become her Serene Highness the Princess of Monaco and the wife of Prince Rainier. Today in the church ceremony she will become wife in the sight of God.

So goes the saga of one of America's most popular daughters—a fairy dream come true So many little girls have spent the soft afternoon gazing through the casement window of sweet childhood into their mind's eye garden and seen there their prince charming. And such have always lived happily ever after.

It is good to have such dreams come true now and then. Sweet thoughts require nourishment and the world needs them.

We hope that in real life this high experience in the life of our Grace brings all the happiness the dreams promise.

But gay and pretty as were all of the events of her wedding—a veritable scene out of an Offenbach operetta, as one who was there described it, there are nevertheless hard responsibilities and moments of weariness. And there is a long life to live after the color, the tumult and the cheers fade. We hope they have not dimmed the real purpose of the affair, which is the marriage of two young and hopeful people, of two who have joined their course for better or worse for richer for poorer forever. And for that resolve and for that act we all wish those two young people, titled or no, the best of good fortune and all the rich contentment that can generate from such a state.

Is It Prophetic?

It is a laudable and community-serving program which is setting the Lancaster Civil Defense organization to work providing identification tags for people. But when one studies the facts the tags are to carry one is given uneasy thoughts.

A sample tag shows that it carries the name and address of the wearer, his birth date, the date the tag was prepared, the name of nearest kin and the church affiliation.

We would feel more encouraged if the tags included something of a survival nature such as the bearer's blood type. There is something quite final about birth dates, nearest kin and provision for desirable burial rites.

Civil Defense has been realistic about the consequences of atomic age bombing but if the absence of any blood type on the tag is an expression of it then an omission has become totally eloquent and has said more than a million words.

If it is a reminder that Lancaster citizens are taking civil defense too lightheartedly we are all willing to take the hint. We shall forthwith go about doing the things that will qualify us for some survival entries on our tags Perhaps it is time to sit down and have a good heart to heart talk with the Lancaster defense chiefs

Low Man Is Victor

It is doubtful that the complete totals in New Jersey's presidential primary will change the trends established by Wednesday's substantial number of early returns.

And it can be added that it is equally doubtful that the returns will give the American people any dependable preview of how New Jersey will vote next November when the chips are down for the presidency.

The most the returns have shown is that things can get done in a preferential primary, and what occurs in one state cannot be taken as a pattern for another.

President Eisenhower, unopposed, ran well out in front in New Jersey. Adlai Stevenson, Democratic write-in candidate, got a negligible vote. He was greatly outdistanced by Estes Kefauver, who albeit made a poor showing in total vote.

The gimmick was that Kefauver attempted to capture a state whose political organization was entrenched behind Stevenson. He didn't get it done. On-the-spot analysis explained that Democratic voters ignored the presidential preference portion of the ballot, but cast their votes for Gov. Meyner's uncommitted slate of convention delegates. However uncommitted the slate may be it was authored by the governor who is a Stevenson supporter.

So there we have it. The Republican leader in the vote-getting was coasting in. Low man Stevenson in the Democratic balloting apparently achieved the substantial victory, a concession of most or all of New Jersey convention delegates.

It all sums up to saying that preferential primaries to the contrary notwithstanding it will take the national conventions and the November balloting to give a dependable picture of what is going on politically in this country.

Of Men And Things

WASHINGTON—Before leaving home, there had been the announcement that Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther late in 1956 would retire as supreme commander of NATO forces in Europe. The news came as a complete surprise. Not even a brother in Omaha knew that Gen. Gruenther planned to step out. But if all military men could complete the transition from military to civilian life with the ease, grace and competence of Gen. Gruenther, retirement would have no sting.

To Private Industry

The recipient of many tempting offers, with three years yet to go before reaching retirement age, Mr. Gruenther was stepping down and out to accept a post in private enterprise. The new job would pay $75,000 a year the press dispatches hinted. Gen. Gruenther himself told newsmen that he was stepping out to make way for younger men with new ideas. A great soldier, with a brilliant record back of him, Gen. Gruenther will visit Nebraska in late May to help the city of Columbus with its centennial observance. There is a great deal of sentimental association in that engagement for Gen. Gruenther. There in Platte County his magnificent father for years edited a fine country newspaper and won the high esteem and respect of his neighbors.

★

Sterling McCaw of the Norfolk News noted recently that Columnist Ray Tucker in Washington had listed Nebraska as one of the farm states which might go Democratic. "Yet it has been necessary to coerce and cajole prominent Democrats to get them to file for state office," Mr. McCaw wrote. "How does this jibe with Mr. Tucker's Washington information and Mr. Boyle's forecast? The greatest peril to the party (Republican) is complacency. That cost the party a victory in 1948 and it could do the same thing this year." It could be complacency but more likely the thing producing a Democratic victory in Nebraska would be drought and financial distress. We pretty much vote on the basis of a fat or flat pocketbook.

Ain't Nature Wonderful?

We have been very much intrigued by these stories relating to Elijah, the forlorn horse which got lost in the High Rockies. Elijah, so we are told, is a horse with a violent dislike for parked cars or for women wearing skirts. All he asks in this world is to be left alone. That seems to us to be a somewhat reasonable request. But while weighing the character of Elijah, our eyes happened to spot a picture appearing in an outstate Nebraska daily showing how termites had really gone to town on the inner core of the limb of a box-elder tree. In this particular case, the termites had virtually cleaned out the core of the limb. Termites, a park caretaker tells us, seldom if ever feast upon live wood, hence are not much of a menace to healthy trees.

★

A candidate for state office in Nebraska wrote the editor: "Why should it be necessary for one to spend thousands of dollars to be elected to any office? Only by electing officials on the basis of their standing on issues and their conduct in everyday life can we have a government of the people, by the people and for the people." Unfortunately one of the reasons why running for office costs is that the people themselves are so everlastingly busy in a complicated modern world that they get little opportunity to study and reflect upon issues. The old town hall system was a great institution in early America, but it would not get far in this present-day world, we fear.

The Answer

Bill Vaughan in the Kansas City Star has concluded that no country likes any other country's railroads, taxi-cabs and foreign policy. This advice should be forwarded without delay to Secretary Dulles. It may straighten out his problem. There is nothing like getting at the true causes for things.

We Are Slipping

America may be a land of plenty in many things but that is not the case with its supply of physicians. The country is running short.

Dr. Gideon S. Dodds of West Virginia University noted that in 1880 there were 64 medical school graduates for every million Americans. Surprisingly enough today there are only 42 for every million.

The answer seems to be in the failure to increase the number of medical schools in keeping with the population rise—a piece of unfinished business the country had better start taking care of.

The situation is not as critical as it might be because medicine is practiced differently today. More people are treated in hospitals and doctors are not required to spend so much time making calls. The advent of the automobile and the decline of home treatment has saved precious hours every day and allowed fewer physicians to take care of more cases. But even with streamlining there is a limit. And since physicians are not prepared over night but rather require upward of 10 years from the start of study to the beginning of practice there is a time lag in correcting the shortage which makes prompt action more urgent.

Forgotten Man

If Governor J. Bracken Lee of Utah expected to remain forever in the forefront of the American mind because he refused to pay his income tax he is engaged in a disappointing adventure.

He and his cause are already largely forgotten but his taxes aren't. He has been overshadowed by the opening of the baseball season, the presidential veto of the farm bill and the latest remarks of Secretary Dulles countering something he said earlier.

Governor Lee, an elected public official whose principal function is to stand for prudent administration and obedience to law, got far enough out of character to refuse to pay his income tax because the government planned to spend some of the money overseas, which Lee by some legal reckoning of his own says is illegal. He is now being sued. The governor is resorting to law to correct the law and if he conceivably could prevail he would be charting a course to anarchy. That's what happens when everyone decides to write and construe the law each his way. Under such a persuasion we wonder how the governor justifies being governor.

Reds Told How To Win British

WASHINGTON — The Kremlin has finally found a good use for the two British spies, Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean.

It is no secret among Moscow's foreign diplomats that Burgess and MacLean have been disappointed with their lot since they deserted the West. They have been given minor jobs working on English-speaking propaganda and are kept under constant surveillance.

Recently, however, they were called in to advise on the important question of what Bulganin and Khrushchev should do during their visit to England to best endear them to the British public.

According to diplomatic advices received here, Burgess and MacLean are reported to have come up with these recommendations: Pat children on the head, get photographed as much as possible with pretty girls, and quote Winston Churchill and Shakespeare frequently.

Note—Apparently Burgess and MacLean also gave this advice to Georgi Malenkov because one of the first things he did in England was to visit Shakespeare's birthplace and one of his most publicized photos was that of two British girls bussing him on each cheek.

Thomas E. Dewey, attorney-at-law and private citizen, now slides in and out of Washington as quietly and efficiently as he used to slide from the Hotel Roosevelt in New York to the governor's mansion in Albany. He gets things done.

With three of his own men in the Eisenhower cabinet (Dulles, Brownell and Mitchell), plus one of his appointees on the Supreme Court (Justice Harlan), plus his onetime press secretary, Jim Hagerty, in the White House, Dewey should be able to get things done in Washington.

When it comes to foreign affairs, however, Thomas E. Dewey has a record of laying a great big egg.

When the Turkish government hired him at a fee of $150,000 to get them a $300,000,000 American loan, Dewey came up with a paltry $25,000,000. Even though Dewey got John Foster Dulles his job as secretary of state, a paltry $25,000,000 was all he could squeeze out of his friends.

Again, last week in Cuba, the man who materially helped get Ike the nomination was unable even to see President Batista

It's a complicated but significant story.

CUBAN SUGAR-WOLF

Dewey went to Cuba on behalf of Loeb, Rhoades, and Co., New York brokers, to try to take over the Cuban-Atlantic Sugar Company, largest in Cuba.

Behind Dewey, at least in the minds of Cubans, was Julio Lobo, whose name in Spanish means wolf, and who generally is regarded as the sugar-wolf of Cuba. Lobo owns 12 sugar mills, controls a big hunk of Cuba's sugar output, and had been buying up stock in Cuban-American with a view to taking it over. Associated with him was Dewey's client, John Loeb.

At this point some unfortunate things happened

Arthur Gardner, our well-meaning ambassador to Cuba, gave a dinner for Dewey, April 9. To the dinner he invited Julio Lobo, the man who supposedly had bowed out of the sugar deal. Earlier that day sugar-wolf Lobo had married the German fiancee to whom he had long been sugar daddy. Despite the honeymoon launched only that day, however, Lobo was at the dinner—along with Dewey and John Loeb, the man from whom supposedly he had parted company.

Dewey's job in Havana was to convince the Cuban government that sugar-wolf Lobo was out of the Cuban-American deal, and the fact that Lobo was at the dinner convinced them of just the opposite.

Uphill Pull For Wilson Dinner

WASHINGTON — A Republican conference here which is downcast over President Eisenhower's veto of the farm bill can take comfort from that humming noise offstage. It comes from Democrats hating to see that evening sun go down on their $100-a-plate Woodrow Wilson dinner Saturday night at the armory.

Democrats habitually sing the financial blues. A recent Look Magazine article showed that Republicans have a corner on the market of rich contributors. In 1952, Look said, they outcollected Democrats two to one and labor union spending reduced their adverse ratio only to 13 to 8.

This week's fund-raising effort threatens, however, to be disaster. Unless more tickets are sold promptly the dinner will be more memorial than fund-raising. And the American Society of Newspaper Editors, which will be hearing the President that same night at its own dinner here, will be right on hand to hear—and publish— all about it.

Furthermore, the story will follow hard after the well-heeled Republicans have cheered their President at a smartly stage-managed dinner ending their strategy conference. The GOP raised three million dollars at its salute to Eisenhower dinners last January and feels so affluent it even fed the reporters this time. A few tired sandwiches comprised the hospitality to the press at the salute gala.

When the competition from Monaco and their very own Miss Democrat, Margaret Truman, is added, Democrats have something to cry about. The Trumans have held Margaret's wedding Saturday strictly to a personal list, no official friends. This is co-operative, but the former President is still big boxoffice at a Democratic clambake and his absence hurts.

Yet, by that contradiction which is so integral a part of a Democrat, headquarters is lively, as volunteers man the telephones to the faithful.

One wit fears seeing the skeleton in the armory Saturday night. Another has been forcibly reminded of his Navy service and the sign he saw near the rudder of his P-T boat. It read "In case of emergency, don't bother to do anything."

The calls are also affording dissatisfied Democrats, of which there is always a bull market, a chance to tell Washington off. One listener feels that if the same people will only expand equal energy against the Republicans next fall, the party's in.

It was Will Rogers, however, who pointed out that while Democrats would fight Republicans if no other Democrats were available, they saved their best hatchet-work for each other.

ED FITZHUGH

Count Of Freckles On Richard's Nose

The reason I am writing this in the dark hole under the basement stairs is that our daughter has a friend staying overnight.

It is an awe-inspiring thing to consider the difference in numbers between one teen-age girl and two. One barely fills up a chair in the living room, but two make you sympathize with the trouble the old frontier railraods had getting through a herd of buffalo.

There is at the moment a radio going on the second floor, a television program coming through on the first floor, a batch of fudge working in the kitchen, a telephone conversation proceeding in relays and a homework problem under consideration on the dining room table.

I have made three forays out of my hide-hole in the belief that the enemy has parachuted down and set up general headquarters in our domicile but each time Mrs. F. has assured me that there are only two girls on the premises, besides herself and me. We do not count, because she is holed up in the attic hooking a rug and I am here in the basement keeping a sharp eye on the foundations.

This is not a condition peculiar to our household. Careful questioning among friends who also have teen-age daughters has disclosed that the situation prevailing here is ouite general under the circumstances. Nevertheless, it has some very puzzling aspects entirely aside from the question of how you can sextuple the sound by simply doubling the source.

Perhaps the most puzzling aspect of all deals with the confidences passed between the young ladies, such as, for instance, that Richard Yogurt has eight freckles on his nose.

Why anybody would stop to count the freckles on Richard Yogurt's nose in the first place is a life-sized mystery in itself, but it is as nothing compared to the greater question—How in the world did the information get from one girl to the other?

To appreciate the magnitude of the problem you must understand that young Yogurt is not of especial interest to either of the girls, and therefore is not discussed at length. In fact, it is a wonder he comes into the conversation at all. So he is mentioned only once, and then only casually, as you or I might throw into a lull in the talk the observation that fleas can jump farther than grasshoppers can, pound for pound.

I don't think girls hear things; I think they absorb them. And the trouble is, as any husband can tell you, that they carry the same talent right on into wifehood.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND

Man's Friend, Birds' Best Friend

By ALLEN EDEE
Star Staff Writer

The John F. Baker family of 2918 So. 42nd loves to hunt together—without man's best friend.

Buttons, the canine, retrieves only cockleburs, Mrs. Baker admits. But the four-year-old wire-haired terrier saucily barks back, unashamed of her failure as a hunter.

When Buttons is lucky enough to go ahunting with the rest of the family, she will immediately let the bird kingdom know of her presence by plopping and splashing in the first pond or creek she comes to.

The white, black and tan dog lives with nine-year-old Mike because of a chance glance at the dog on television When the Bakers lived in Toledo O., a local animal shelter sponsored a TV lineup of lost and needy dogs. Mike saw Buttons and literally ran down to the shelter with two dollars he had saved clutched in his hand

"When I saw her, she was looking at me so sad and nice," Mike said. He immediately bought her for himself.

Buttons might have thought her luck ran out about four months ago A wandering pussy came meowing into the yard of the Bakers. Mike spied her and asked his mom if he could feed her Then came the inevitable "Can the cat stay just one night, please, Mom, please."

(Star Staff Photo)

. . . two dollars from a boy's bank . . .

So the cat stayed and stayed and stayed. Now Fluff is a full-fledged member of the Baker family and Buttons has had to move a little bit away from the center of attention.

However, both dog and cat began to play with each other and now they are warm-hearted friends, though when Buttons sees Fluff being picked up and cuddled by Mike, her friendship cools to lukewarm.

RUSSIAN ROMANCE

South Of The Rio Grande

Editor's Note: Russian hopes for a Communist-minded South America are carried on promises of trade pacts and aid. While the Reds have not made good on their words, their activity presents a challenge to the West according to this article in the London Economist.

In what Mr. Dulles has called "the second round" in the cold war, the Soviet leaders are lavishing smiles and promises to the four winds. Western strategists may be wondering where the ubiquitous Russians will pop up next. Could it be just south of the Rio Grande?

The latest Soviet approaches to Latin America, the proposal to establish diplomatic and commercial ties with all the countries of Central and South America and to exchange Russian machinery, oil and technical assistance for agricultural products and raw materials, are nothing new. Although Marshal Balganin's sweeping offer—contained in replies to questions submitted by Vision, the leading Latin American periodical—was aptly timed and is broader in scope than earlier blandishments from Moscow, it merely continues a traditional part of Soviet diplomacy.

There is a combination of sensitive nationalism, increasing distinctions of wealth, restless native populations impoverished by the decline in old methods of agriculture, and local strong men eager to seize power.

The astonishing fact is not that there should be important centers of Communist influence and activity in Latin America but that these should be on the whole, so ineffective.

Communist influence is strongest in Brazil, Mexico, Argentina, Chile and several of the republics of Central America. The party was outlawed in Brazil in 1947 but continues its activities under the leadership of Col. Prestes, a somewhat legendary figure.

Communist strength is estimated at between 120,000 and 140,000 with some 300,000 adherents on its fringe. In the recent elections, Communist votes provided embarrassing but important support for President Kubitschek and Vice President Goulart is suspected of flirting with a perilous combination of Marxist doctrine and ultra-nationalism.

In Argentina the numerical strength of the party is less than 100,000 but there are Communist sympathizers in key positions in organized lazor. Although Moscow's line on Peron was one of friendship with a valiant exponent of the "third force" Argentine Communists are now claiming their share in liberating the country and are trying to capture the unions, which are in a state of bewilderment and dissatisfaction.

The strong tradition of Communist infiltration in Central America and the Caribbean is at its most effective among the sugar workers of Cuba and the fruit pickers of Guatemala. Although the pro-Communist regime in Guatemala was overthrown with American backing nearly two years ago, Soviet interest in the country goes on.

Throughout Central America the often tactless forms of American influence and the poverty of the lower classes, contrasted with the ostentatious splendor of the rich and the brutal character of some governments, give an excuse for class hatred and Marxist fervor. There are another 200,000 Communists scattered throughout Peru, Venezuela, Colombia, Panama and Uruguay; in most the party is outlawed.

Yet, when it comes down to hard fact, the Soviet initiative has not so far much solid footing. The record shows that trade agreements between Russia and various Latin American countries have, in the past, been worth little.

The most glaring instance is the much-heralded pact between Russia and Peron's Argentina. Contrary to widespread belief, Russo-Argentine trade has been of little significance. More remarkable, the Soviet Union is today one of the very few nations that remains indebted to Argentina.

There are at present some 20 trade agreements between the nations of Central and South America and various members of the Soviet bloc. They call for an exchange of $500,000,000 worth of goods each year. Actual commerce in 1954 amounted to only $200,000,000. Compared with the figures of trade with, and assistance from, the United States these are paltry sums.

Grandsinger Case

Nenzel, Neb.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The other night I picked up a paper that carried a reprint of The Star article about Loyd Grandsinger. I don't know exactly how to put into words just how joyous I felt when I read it.

When Loyd Grandsinger was first tried, I had the strangest feeling that he was not guilty. When he was convicted and the date for his death had been set, there was a petition passed for people in our part of the country to sign. My name was not on it. And that is my reason for writing. I would like to add my name to the list of those who believe he is innocent.

The paper that reprinted The Star article carried an editorial suggesting that to take a stand for Grandsinger is to choose against Patrolman Marvin Hansen. Patrolman Hansen was a truly fine man, loved and respected by all who knew him. And because he was, I do not believe he would desire the death of another to avenge his own. To take the life of one man does not give back the life of another. And to take the life of Loyd Grandsinger if he were not guilty would be to increase our own guilt.

The Tax Dollar

Lincoln, Neb.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I have just finished reading the school section of The Sunday Journal and Star of April 15, and I was very enlightened to learn where the money is going that we voted in the 1951 and 1955 bond issues, although I did not attend the public schools and my children do not attend them.

I believe we should all realize that it is so important that our children be educated in fine buildings with beautifully landscaped grounds, and now and then we hear about our poor teachers and principals and what-have-you.

I also read about our proposed medical center, which makes my blood boil. Why should we the people support and build a city medical center? If Lincoln needs such an institution, why don't the doctors put up a building of this type and leave the Rogers Tract for recreation?

Fellow voters, we have our schools and we have our auditorium, just to mention two of the items that increased our taxes. But now, for heaven's sake, do not vote for another bond issue. Perhaps then we can go another year or so without a tax increase.

She Becomes a Princess

The civil service is over. Our Grace Kelly has become her Serene Highness the Princess of Monaco and the wife of Prince Rainier. Today in the church ceremony she will become wife in the sight of God.

So goes the saga of one of America's most popular daughters—a fairy dream come true. So many little girls have spent the soft afternoon gazing through the casement window of sweet childhood into their mind's eye garden and seen there their prince charming. And such have always lived happily ever after.

It is good to have such dreams come true now and then. Sweet thoughts require nourishment and the world needs them.

We hope that in real life this high experience in the life of our Grace brings all the happiness the dreams promise.

But gay and pretty as were all of the events of her wedding—a veritable scene out of an Offenbach operetta, as one who was there described it, there are nevertheless hard responsibilities and moments of weariness. And there is a long life to live after the color, the tumult and the cheers fade. We hope they have not dimmed the real purpose of the affair, which is the marriage of two young and hopeful people, of two who have joined their course for better or worse for richer for poorer forever. And for that resolve and for that act we all wish those two young people, titled or no, the best of good fortune and all the rich contentment that can generate from such a state.

Is It Prophetic?

It is a laudable and community-serving program which is setting the Lancaster Civil Defense organization to work providing identification tags for people. But when one studies the facts the tags are to carry one is given uneasy thoughts.

A sample tag shows that it carries the name and address of the wearer, his birth date, the date the tag was prepared, the name of nearest kin and the church affiliation.

We would feel more encouraged if the tags included something of a survival nature such as the bearer's blood type. There is something quite final about birth dates, nearest kin and provision for desirable burial rites.

Civil Defense has been realistic about the consequences of atomic age bombing but if the absence of any blood type on the tag is an expression of it then an omission has become totally eloquent and has said more than a million words.

If it is a reminder that Lancaster citizens are taking civil defense too lightheartedly we are all willing to take the hint. We shall forthwith go about doing the things that will qualify us for some survival entries on our tags. Perhaps it is time to sit down and have a good heart to heart talk with the Lancaster defense chiefs.

Low Man Is Victor

It is doubtful that the complete totals in New Jersey's presidential primary will change the trends established by Wednesday's substantial number of early returns.

And it can be added that it is equally doubtful that the returns will give the American people any dependable preview of how New Jersey will vote next November when the chips are down for the presidency.

The most the returns have shown is that things can get done in a preferential primary, and what occurs in one state cannot be taken as a pattern for another.

President Eisenhower, unopposed, ran well out in front in New Jersey. Adlai Stevenson, Democratic write-in candidate, got a negligible vote. He was greatly outdistanced by Estes Kefauver, who albeit made a poor showing in total vote.

The gimmick was that Kefauver attempted to capture a state whose political organization was entrenched behind Stevenson. He didn't get it done. On-the-spot analysis explained that Democratic voters ignored the presidential preference portion of the ballot, but cast their votes for Gov. Meyner's uncommitted slate of convention delegates. However uncommitted the slate may be it was authored by the governor who is a Stevenson supporter.

So there we have it. The Republican leader in the vote-getting was coasting in. Low man Stevenson in the Democratic balloting apparently achieved the substantial victory, a concession of most or all of New Jersey convention delegates.

It all sums up to saying that preferential primaries to the contrary notwithstanding it will take the national conventions and the November balloting to give a dependable picture of what is going on politically in this country.

Of Men And Things

WASHINGTON—Before leaving home, there had been the announcement that Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther late in 1956 would retire as supreme commander of NATO forces in Europe. The news came as a complete surprise. Not even a brother in Omaha knew that Gen. Gruenther planned to step out. But if all military men could complete the transition from military to civilian life with the ease, grace and competence of Gen. Gruenther, retirement would have no sting.

★

To Private Industry

The recipient of many tempting offers, with three years yet to go before reaching retirement age, Mr. Gruenther was stepping down and out to accept a post in private enterprise. The new job would pay $75,000 a year the press dispatches hinted. Gen. Gruenther himself told newsmen that he was stepping out to make way for younger men with new ideas. A great soldier, with a brilliant record back of him, Gen. Gruenther will visit Nebraska in late May to help the city of Columbus with its centennial observance. There is a great deal of sentimental association in that engagement for Gen. Gruenther. There in Platte County his magnificent father for years edited a fine country newspaper and won the high esteem and respect of his neighbors.

★

Sterling McCaw of the Norfolk News noted recently that Columnist Ray Tucker in Washington had listed Nebraska as one of the farm states which might go Democratic. "Yet it has been necessary to coerce and cajole prominent Democrats to get them to file for state office," Mr. McCaw wrote. "How does this jibe with Mr. Tucker's Washington information and Mr. Boyle's forecast? The greatest peril to the party (Republican) is complacency. That cost the party a victory in 1948 and it could do the same thing this year." It could be complacency but more likely the thing producing a Democratic victory in Nebraska would be drought and financial distress. We pretty much vote on the basis of a fat or flat pocketbook.

Ain't Nature Wonderful?

We have been very much intrigued by these stories relating to Elijah, the forlorn horse which got lost in the High Rockies. Elijah, so we are told, is a horse with a violent dislike for parked cars or for women wearing skirts. All he asks in this world is to be left alone. That seems to us to be a somewhat reasonable request. But while weighing the character of Elijah, our eyes happened to spot a picture appearing in an outstate Nebraska daily showing how termites had really gone to town on the inner core of the limb of a boxelder tree. In this particular case, the termites had virtually cleaned out the core of the limb. Termites, a park caretaker tells us, seldom if ever feast upon live wood, hence are not much of a menace to healthy trees.

★

A candidate for state office in Nebraska wrote the editor: "Why should it be necessary for one to spend thousands of dollars to be elected to any office? Only by electing officials on the basis of their standing on issues and their conduct in everyday life can we have a government of the people, by the people and for the people." Unfortunately one of the reasons why running for office costs is that the people themselves are so everlastingly busy in a complicated modern world that they get little opportunity to study and reflect upon issues. The old town hall system was a great institution in early America, but it would not get far in this present-day world, we fear.

The Answer

Bill Vaughan in the Kansas City Star has concluded that no country likes any other country's railroads, taxi-cabs and foreign policy. This advice should be forwarded without delay to Secretary Dulles. It may straighten out his problem. There is nothing like getting at the true causes for things.

We Are Slipping

America may be a land of plenty in many things but that is not the case with its supply of physicians. The country is running short.

Dr. Gideon S. Dodds of West Virginia University noted that in 1880 there were 64 medical school graduates for every million Americans. Surprisingly enough today there are only 42 for every million.

The answer seems to be in the failure to increase the number of medical schools in keeping with the population rise—a piece of unfinished business the country had better start taking care of.

The situation is not as critical as it might be because medicine is practiced differently today. More people are treated in hospitals and doctors are not required to spend so much time making calls. The advent of the automobile and the decline of home treatment has saved precious hours every day and allowed fewer physicians to take care of more cases. But even with streamlining there is a limit. And since physicians are not prepared over night but rather require upward of 10 years from the start of study to the beginning of practice there is a time lag in correcting the shortage which makes prompt action more urgent.

Forgotten Man

If Governor J. Bracken Lee of Utah expected to remain forever in the forefront of the American mind because he refused to pay his income tax he is engaged in a disappointing adventure.

He and his cause are already largely forgotten but his taxes aren't. He has been overshadowed by the opening of the baseball season, the presidential veto of the farm bill and the latest remarks of Secretary Dulles countering something he said earlier.

Governor Lee, an elected public official whose principal function is to stand for prudent administration and obedience to law, got far enough out of character to refuse to pay his income tax because the government planned to spend some of the money overseas, which Lee by some legal reckoning of his own says is illegal. He is now being sued. The governor is resorting to law to correct the law and if he conceivably could prevail he would be charting a course to anarchy. That's what happens when everyone decides to write and construe the law each his way. Under such a persuasion we wonder how the governor justifies being governor.

Reds Told How To Win British

WASHINGTON — The Kremlin has finally found a good use for the two British spies, Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean.

It is no secret among Moscow's foreign diplomats that Burgess and MacLean have been disappointed with their lot since they deserted the West. They have been given minor jobs working on English-speaking propaganda and are kept under constant surveillance.

Recently, however, they were called in to advise on the important question of what Bulganin and Khrushchev should do during their visit to England to best endear them to the British public.

According to diplomatic advices received here, Burgess and MacLean are reported to have come up with these recommendations: Pat children on the head, get photographed as much as possible with pretty girls, and quote Winston Churchill and Shakespeare frequently.

Note—Apparently Burgess and MacLean also gave this advice to Georgi Malenkov because one of the first things he did in England was to visit Shakespeare's birthplace and one of his most publicized photos was that of two British girls bussing him on each cheek.

Thomas E. Dewey, attorney-at-law and private citizen, now slides in and out of Washington as quietly and efficiently as he used to slide from the Hotel Roosevelt in New York to the governor's mansion in Albany. He gets things done.

With three of his own men in the Eisenhower cabinet (Dulles, Brownell and Mitchell), plus one of his appointees on the Supreme Court (Justice Harlan), plus his onetime press secretary, Jim Hagerty, in the White House, Dewey should be able to get things done in Washington.

When it comes to foreign affairs, however, Thomas E. Dewey has a record of laying a great big egg.

When the Turkish government hired him at a fee of $150,000 to get them a $300,000,000 American loan, Dewey came up with a paltry $25,000,000. Even though Dewey got John Foster Dulles his job as secretary of state, a paltry $25,000,000 was all he could squeeze out of his friends.

Again, last week in Cuba, the man who materially helped get Ike the nomination was unable even to see President Batista.

It's a complicated but significant story.

CUBAN SUGAR-WOLF

Dewey went to Cuba on behalf of Loeb, Rhoades, and Co., New York brokers, to try to take over the Cuban-Atlantic Sugar Company, largest in Cuba.

Behind Dewey, at least in the minds of Cubans, was Julio Lobo, whose name in Spanish means wolf, and who generally is regarded as the sugar-wolf of Cuba. Lobo owns 12 sugar mills, controls a big hunk of Cuba's sugar output, and had been buying up stock in Cuban-American with a view to taking it over. Associated with him was Dewey's client, John Loeb.

At this point some unfortunate things happened:

Arthur Gardner, our well-meaning ambassador to Cuba, gave a dinner for Dewey, April 9. To the dinner he invited Julio Lobo, the man who supposedly had bowed out of the sugar deal. Earlier that day sugar-wolf Lobo had married the German fiancee to whom he had long been sugar daddy. Despite the honeymoon launched only that day, however, Lobo was at the dinner—along with Dewey and John Loeb, the man from whom supposedly he had parted company.

Dewey's job in Havana was to convince the Cuban government that sugar-wolf Lobo was out of the Cuban-American deal, and the fact that Lobo was at the dinner convinced them of just the opposite.

Uphill Pull For Wilson Dinner

WASHINGTON — A Republican conference here which is downcast over President Eisenhower's veto of the farm bill can take comfort from that humming noise offstage. It comes from Democrats hating to see that evening sun go down on their $100-a-plate Woodrow Wilson dinner Saturday night at the armory.

Democrats habitually sing the financial blues. A recent Look Magazine article showed that Republicans have a corner on the market of rich contributors. In 1952, Look said, they outcollected Democrats two to one and labor union spending reduced their adverse ratio only to 13 to 8.

This week's fund-raising effort threatens, however, to be disaster. Unless more tickets are sold promptly the dinner will be more memorial than fund-raising. And the American Society of Newspaper Editors, which will be hearing the President that same night at its own dinner here, will be right on hand to hear—and publish— all about it.

Furthermore, the story will follow hard after the well-heeled Republicans have cheered their President at a smartly stage-managed dinner ending their strategy conference. The GOP raised three million dollars at its salute to Eisenhower dinners last January and feels so affluent it even fed the reporters this time. A few tired sandwiches comprised the hospitality to the press at the salute gala.

☆ ☆ ☆

When the competition from Monaco and their very own Miss Democrat, Margaret Truman, is added, Democrats have something to cry about. The Trumans have held Margaret's wedding Saturday strictly to a personal list, no official friends. This is co-operative, but the former President is still big boxoffice at a Democratic clambake and his absence hurts.

Yet, by that contradiction which is so integral a part of a Democrat, headquarters is lively, as volunteers man the telephones to the faithful.

One wit fears seeing the skeleton in the armory Saturday night. Another has been forcibly reminded of his Navy service and the sign he saw near the rudder of his P-T boat. It read "In case of emergency, don't bother to do anything."

The calls are also affording dissatisfied Democrats, of which there is always a bull market, a chance to tell Washington off. One listener feels that if the same people will only expand equal energy against the Republicans next fall, the party's in.

It was Will Rogers, however, who pointed out that while Democrats would fight Republicans if no other Democrats were available, they saved their best hatchet-work for each other.

Count Of Freckles On Richard's Nose

The reason I am writing this in the dark hole under the basement stairs is that our daughter has a friend staying overnight.

It is an awe-inspiring thing to consider the difference in numbers between one teen-age girl and two. One barely fills up a chair in the living room, but two make you sympathize with the trouble the old frontier railraods had getting through a herd of buffalo.

There is at the moment a radio going on the second floor, a television program coming through on the first floor, a batch of fudge working in the kitchen, a telephone conversation proceeding in relays and a homework problem under consideration on the dining room table.

I have made three forays out of my hide-hole in the belief that the enemy has parachuted down and set up general headquarters in our domicile but each time Mrs. F. has assured me that there are only two girls on the premises, besides herself and me. We do not count, because she is holed up in the attic hooking a rug and I am here in the basement keeping a sharp eye on the foundations.

This is not a condition peculiar to our household. Careful questioning among friends who also have teenage daughters has disclosed that the situation prevailing here is quite general under the circumstances. Nevertheless, it has some very puzzling aspects entirely aside from the question of how you can sextuple the sound by simply doubling the source.

Perhaps the most puzzling aspect of all deals with the confidences passed between the young ladies, such as, for instance, that Richard Yogurt has eight freckles on his nose.

Why anybody would stop to count the freckles on Richard Yogurt's nose in the first place is a life-sized mystery in itself, but it is as nothing compared to the greater question—How in the world did the information get from one girl to the other?

To appreciate the magnitude of the problem you must understand that young Yogurt is not of especial interest to either of the girls, and therefore is not discussed at length. In fact, it is a wonder he comes into the conversation at all. So he is mentioned only once, and then only casually, as you or I might throw into a lull in the talk the observation that fleas can jump farther than grasshoppers can, pound for pound.

I don't think girls hear things; I think they absorb them. And the trouble is, as any husband can tell you, that they carry the same talent right on into wifehood.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND

Man's Friend, Birds' Best Friend

By ALLEN EDEE
Star Staff Writer

The John T. Baker family of 2918 So. 42nd loves to hunt together—without man's best friend.

Buttons, the canine, retrieves only cockleburs, Mrs. Baker admits. But the four-year-old wire-haired terrier saucily barks back, unashamed of her failure as a hunter.

When Buttons is lucky enough to go ahunting with the rest of the family, she will immediately let the bird kingdom know of her presence by piopping and splashing in the first pond or creek she comes to.

The white, black and tan dog lives with nine-year-old Mike because of a chance glance at the dog on television. When the Bakers lived in Toledo, O., a local animal shelter sponsored a TV lineup of lost and needy dogs. Mike saw Buttons and literally ran down to the shelter with two dollars he had saved clutched in his hand.

"When I saw her, she was looking at me so sad and nice," Mike said. He immediately bought her for himself.

☆ ☆ ☆

Buttons might have thought her luck ran out about four months ago. A wandering pussy came meowing into the yard of the Bakers. Mike spied her and asked his mom if he could feed her. Then came the inevitable "Can the cat stay just one night, please, Mom, please."

(Star Staff Photo)

. . . two dollars from a boy's bank . . .

So the cat stayed and stayed and stayed. Now Fluff is a full-fledged member of the Baker family and Buttons has had to move a little bit away from the center of attention.

However, both dog and cat began to play with each other and now they are warm-hearted friends, though when Buttons sees Fluff being picked up and cuddled by Mike, her friendship cools to lukewarm.

RUSSIAN ROMANCE

South Of The Rio Grande

Editor's Note: Russian hopes for a Communist-minded South America are carried on promises of trade pacts and aid. While the Reds have not made good on their words, their activity presents a challenge to the West according to this article in the London Economist.

In what Mr. Dulles has called "the second round" in the cold war, the Soviet leaders are lavishing smiles and promises to the four winds. Western strategists may be wondering where the ubiquitous Russians will pop up next. Could it be just south of the Rio Grande?

The latest Soviet approaches to Latin America, the proposal to establish diplomatic and commercial ties with all the countries of Central and South America and to exchange Russian machinery, oil and technical assistance for agricultural products and raw materials, are nothing new. Although Marshal Bulganin's sweeping offer—contained in replies to questions submitted by Vision, the leading Latin American periodical—was aptly timed and is broader in scope than earlier blandishments from Moscow, it merely continues a traditional part of Soviet diplomacy.

There is a combination of sensitive nationalism, increasing distinctions of wealth, restless native populations impoverished by the decline in old methods of agriculture, and local strong men eager to seize power.

The astonishing fact is not that there should be important centers of Communist influence and activity in Latin America but that these should be on the whole, so ineffective.

Communist influence is strongest in Brazil, Mexico, Argentina, Chile and several of the republics of Central America. The party was outlawed in Brazil in 1947 but continues its activities under the leadership of Col. Prestes, a somewhat legendary figure.

Communist strength is estimated at between 120,000 and 140,000 with some 300,000 adherents on its fringe. In the recent elections, Communist votes provided embarrassing but important support for President Kubitschek and Vice President Goulart is suspected of flirting with a perilous combination of Marxist doctrine and ultra-nationalism.

In Argentina the numerical strength of the party is less than 100,000 but there are Communist sympathizers in key positions in organized lazor. Although Moscow's line on Peron was one of friendship with a valiant exponent of the "third force" Argentine Communists are now claiming their share in liberating the country and are trying to capture the unions, which are in a state of bewilderment and dissatisfaction.

The strong tradition of Communist infiltration in Central America and the Caribbean is at its most effective among the sugar workers of Cuba and the fruit pickers of Guatemala. Although the pro-Communist regime in Guatemala was overthrown with American backing nearly two years ago, Soviet interest in the country goes on.

Throughout Central America the often tactless forms of American influence and the poverty of the lower classes, contrasted with the ostentatious splendor of the rich and the brutal character of some governments, give an excuse for class hatred and Marxist fervor. There are another 200,000 Communists scattered throughout Peru, Venezuela, Colombia, Panama and Uruguay; in most the party is outlawed.

Yet, when it comes down to hard fact, the Soviet initiative has not so far much solid footing. The record shows that trade agreements between Russia and various Latin American countries have, in the past, been worth little.

The most glaring instance is the much-heralded pact between Russia and Peron's Argentina. Contrary to widespread belief, Russo-Argentine trade has been of little significance. More remarkable, the Soviet Union is today one of the very few nations that remains indebted to Argentina.

There are at present some 20 trade agreements between the nations of Central and South America and various members of the Soviet bloc. They call for an exchange of $500,000,000 worth of goods each year. Actual commerce in 1954 amounted to only $200,000,000. Compared with the figures of trade with, and assistance from, the United States these are paltry sums.

Grandsinger Case

Nenzel, Neb.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The other night I picked up a paper that carried a reprint of The Star article about Loyd Grandsinger. I don't know exactly how to put into words just how joyous I felt when I read it.

When Loyd Grandsinger was first tried, I had the strangest feeling that he was not guilty. When he was convicted and the date for his death had been set, there was a petition passed for people in our part of the country to sign. My name was not on it. And that is my reason for writing. I would like to add my name to the list of those who believe he is innocent.

The paper that reprinted The Star article carried an editorial suggesting that to take a stand for Grandsinger is to choose against Patrolman Marvin Hansen. Patrolman Hansen was a truly fine man, loved and respected by all who knew him. And because he was, I do not believe he would desire the death of another to avenge his own. To take the life of one man does not give back the life of another. And to take the life of Loyd Grandsinger if he were not guilty would be to increase our own guilt.

HEBRON, Neb. — The vote on a proposed merger of four neighboring rural school districts with Hebron's District 7 has been set for May 23. The date was fixed at the regular meeting of the Thayer County School Re-Organization Committee.

The rural districts involved are 39, north of Hebron, 51 and 23 east, and 82 south of town. The election machinery was set in motion by the so-called "25% plan," whereby 25% of the legal voters of a district or districts may petition for a vote on a re-districting measure.

Nebraska News

The proposition requires only a simple majority to carry, but for purposes of the election the rural districts and the town district become separate voting units, and the measure must carry in each The polling place for the rural districts is the clubroom of the courthouse and the Hebron district will vote in the library basement.

Three Hearings

Other Thayer County re-districting activities call for three hearings in the County Superintendent s Office in as many weeks.

Results have not yet been announced from a hearing held to join District 13, northwest of Carleton, to the Carleton District, No 26. Two "Freeholders' Petitions," seeking to attach two District 13 parcels of land to the Bruning district were recently disallowed.

A hearing will be held April 24 on the proposed joining of District 28, southeast of Belvidere, with the Belvidere district On April 30 petitions will be heard seeking to attach No 83, west of Carleton, to Carleton. Part of District 83 joined the Davenport district in a 1955 re-organization.

State PTA Meeting Concerned With Better Schools, Finances

FREMONT, Neb. (AP) — More money for schools and better schools for the money once more will dominate the legislative program on which the Nebraska Congress of Parents and Teachers will be asked to act at its annual convention here Thursday and Friday.

Other items in the tentative program deal with increased state aid for dependent children, family courts to improve legal procedures for dealing with children, and early detection and treatment of psychopaths and sex deviates.

In this latter connection the congress will hear recommendations for stricter laws and law enforcement on objectionable and obscene literature, narcotics and the sale of alcoholic beverages to minors.

One case of a three-part policy statement calls for support of a "financial program for education which will more nearly equalize educational opportunities for children and youth and which will bring about a more equitable assessment of taxes for all citizens."

Among specific recommendations is one that school lands be retained by the state. Another, to be offered by the Scottsbluff and Gering delegations calls for a state sales tax to provide school money.

Other legislative proposals call for

Support of a system of school districting which will make it possible to offer an "adequate and complete educational program for all children from the kindergarten through the 12th grade.

Stronger Certification Laws

Strengthening of teacher certification laws.

Revision of the present law with reference to health education requirements so as to encourage properly qualified teachers from out of the state to teach in Nebraska. The suggested change would delete the clause "with special reference to the effects of alcoholic drinks and other stimulants and narcotics on the human system."

Establishment of single salary schedules for elementary and secondary teachers.

Remove or increase the maximums placed on public assistance payments for dependent children and enable the state to continue aid to children until age 18, provided they remain in school, in conformity with the Federal Assistance Act.

They Really 'Sprechen' German At NU

FIND TAPE A GOOD WAY

Jean Dibb'e of Bennet (left) and Fred Lyman of Omana find that using the tape recorder is a good way of learning conversational German This practice of recording and listening to typical conversations is one phase of beginning German courses at the University of Nebraska.

"Entschuldigen Sie! Ich suche das Hotel am Zoo"

This phrase may be repeated hundreds of times during a week as approximately 250 University of Nebraska students studying beginning German learn to say, "Pardon me I'm looking for the Hotel am Zoo"

The time-worn question "Sprechen Sie Deutsch?" (Do you speak German?) will get a confident "Ja" from these students before they have been in the course very long

This type of practice in conversational German is provided through the German "aural-oral" language laboratory. In laboratory sessions, the students listen to the German sentences and phrases over earphones and then repeat and repeat until they acquire the proper accent.

Useful Sentences

Dr. John Winkelman, assistant professor of Germanic languages and literatures, explains that this new method does not begin with isolated words and grammatical rules but rather with useful sentences and "speech patterns"

Experts from the German department record model consersations consisting of such sentences. First they give and repeat the whole conversation intact and then speak each separate sentence over and over. After each sentence, they pause giving the students a chance to repeat not words alone but whole sentences Thus each week the students add to their store of new, fluently-spoken sentences.

Set Up In '53

This new program was set up by Dr Winkelman when he joined the University faculty in the fall of 1953. With his background in the study of educational methods as well as teaching experience, he has assumed responsibility for the elementary German courses.

Dr. William K Pfeiler, chairman of the department, said they have observed many students using these German phrases in conversations outside of the classroom.

"We are trying to get the students away from the idea that they must be perfect," he says. "Grammatical slips in conversation will not be weighed against them since we are trying to encourage them to talk in German."

They Really 'Sprechen' German At NU

FIND TAPE A GOOD WAY

Jean Dibble of Bennet (left) and Fred Lyman of Omaha find that using the tape recorder is a good way of learning conversational German. This practice of recording and listening to typical conversations is one phase of beginning German courses at the University of Nebraska.

"Entschuldigen Sie! Ich suche das Hotel am Zoo."

This phrase may be repeated hundreds of times during a week as approximately 250 University of Nebraska students studying beginning German learn to say, "Pardon me. I'm looking for the Hotel am Zoo."

The time-worn question "Sprechen Sie Deutsch?" (Do you speak German?) will get a confident "Ja" from these students before they have been in the course very long.

This type of practice in conversational German is provided through the German "aural-oral" language laboratory. In laboratory sessions, the students listen to the German sentences and phrases over earphones and then repeat and repeat until they acquire the proper accent.

Useful Sentences

Dr. John Winkelman, assistant professor of Germanic languages and literatures, explains that this new method does not begin with isolated words and grammatical rules but rather with useful sentences and "speech patterns."

Experts from the German department record model consersations consisting of such sentences. First they give and repeat the whole conversation intact and then speak each separate sentence over and over. After each sentence, they pause giving the students a chance to repeat not words alone but whole sentences. Thus each week the students add to their store of new, fluently-spoken sentences.

Set Up In '53

This new program was set up by Dr. Winkelman when he joined the University faculty in the fall of 1953. With his background in the study of educational methods as well as teaching experience, he has assumed responsibility for the elementary German courses.

Dr. William K. Pfeiler, chairman of the department, said they have observed many students using these German phrases in conversations outside of the classroom.

"We are trying to get the students away from the idea that they must be perfect," he says. "Grammatical slips in conversation will not be weighed against them since we are trying to encourage them to talk in German."

Supersonic Bailout 'Capsule' Disclosed

. . . NU GRAD REVEALS DEVELOPMENT

CHICAGO (AP) — The Navy Wednesday took the wraps off a model of an ejectable cockpit capsule designed to permit survival in plane bailouts at several thousand miles an hour

The airtight cockpit, which has reached the development stage, will be interchangeable on fighters, bombers, interceptors and possibly even the atomic-powered planes of the future

"Each pilot may have his own cockpit, like a cowboy has his own saddle," commented Cmdr George W Hoover of the Office of Naval Research, Washington

(Cmdr. Hoover is a 1951 graduate of the University of Nebraska He attended NU while a lieutenant commander, completing four years of college in just two years. His wife Lona's mother, Mrs Eva Hagerman, lives at 2312 Bradfield Drive in Lincoln Cmdr Hoover has been with naval research in Washington since 1942)

Because of the tearing action of rushing air, 300 to 400 miles an hour has been the survival limit for over the side bailouts. The development of ejection seats and pressure suits has boosted this limit to around the speed of sound.

CMDR GEORGE W HOOVER

Blasted From Plane

The ejection cockpit is designed to be shot free from the plane frame by an explosive charge It can be brought to earth—or sea—by its own parachute The capsule will float indefinitely on landing in water, permitting recovery of expensive equipment

A full size model of the cockpit—shaped like the toe and instep of a woman's slipper—was unveiled at an Aero Medical Assn symposium on escape from high performance aircraft

Hoover told a news conference that the capsule could not be incorporated into any planes now in production but that the concept will be presented to the airframe manufacturing industry

Work on the capsule program has gone hand in hand with a concerted drive by the armed services to simplify the instrument panels on high speed aircraft

The pilot of a modern jet aircraft has some 200 dials and gadgets to attend With the aid of an electronic brain that performs a wide variety of functions these have been reduced to around a dozen in the latest concept of the cockpit capsule

Under this simplified operation, requiring only one or at the most two men, Hoover said the same capsule can be used on fighters or bombers The capsules can be constructed to be one or two seaters He said the capsules also could be used for trainers

Hoover declined to speculate whether the capsule ejection and parachute landing concept could be adapted to the pressurized cabins of commercial airliners of the future.

POSTCARD

As usually happens, Washington hotels are jammed from penthouse to cocktail lounge. My particular hotel is host to a covey of serious ladies.

I have not approached close enough yet to read their badges. But I gather from the hush puppy accent, they are from the Deep South. They are here to petition the government for a redress of grievances. Just like it says in the Constitution.

"Le's all go daown an' see the Congressman," they say. "An' we can stop on the way an' see that DAHLIN' dress in Garfinkel's.

☆ ☆ ☆

Sometime in April, the Federal Housing Administration will bring 100 housewives to Washington. To find out what the housewife really wants in her home.

The ladies will come for free, the Government picking up the nudge.

Having just spent some sad hours with my income tax, I must say I regard this project gloomily.

I am not much for spending my glue to send strange women to Washington to redress their grievances. Not unless I can pick the lady.

As a matter of fact, I know what ladies want in their homes. You do not need to send them to Washington. You send a lady off on a free junket, she is not going to remember what she wants in her home, anyway.

She will be too busy shopping. She will be busy running around to meetings and knifing the other dolls who are on the junket and writing her breadwinner about how EVERYBODY at the meeting was wearing a new outfit except her. And she liked to died of shame.

I have made a complete study of what ladies want in their homes. If Mr. Albert M. Cole who heads the FHA wants to know, let him pick up MY tab. I can tell him a thing or two.

What a lady wants in her home is a nice closetful of fall clothes. It now being spring, nearly every lady is worrying about what she will wear this fall.

When it is fall, she will worry about what she will wear next spring. That is the way it goes. Until the FHA figures how to build in a changing wardrobe, they are wasting the lady's time and the taxpayers' money.

Congressman James M. Quigley from Mr. Eisehhower's district at Gettysburg made an odd complaint.

The 100 ladies will be chosen for this trip on the basis of a letter-writing contest. Just like soap. "What I would like in my house is . . ." In 25 well-chosen words.

This contest is being run by Miss Annabelle Heath, an assistant housing administrator.

"It appears to me," said Congressman Quigley, "that an unmarried lady who is an apartment dweller in Washington, is hardly ideal to dominate a meeting where the married women of America are going to determine what they want in a home."

☆

This, of course, misses the whole point. Miss Heath will be no better judge when she is married than now.

On the subject of what they want in a home, ladies are just about the same. Whether they are buying it on the payroll or conning it out of the old man.

What they wish in a home is something that will make the lady next door simply DIE of envy.

"John just bought me a Screw-loose Garbage Dispos-All with the Instant Cream Whipper attachment. I didn't want to spend the money. But he simply insisted and insisted. I said, 'John, after all, you just bought me a mink coat,' but he . . ."

That is what we should build into our houses. Then all the ladies would be happy as cats in the cream pitcher.

If Mr. Cole is serious, he should write the FHA loans to include wardrobes and gadgets. Instead of dull things like drain tiles and plumbing. No lady is going around bragging about the new drain tile. And if that's what FHA thinks, I want my money back.

Arthur J. Weaver (Lincoln's) To Have Name Identified

Arthur J. Weaver of Lincoln Wednesday requested that the words "General Insurance, Lincoln, Nebraska" be printed under his name when it appears on the May 15 primary election ballot with the list of candidates for Republican national convention delegate.

Weaver's letter to Secretary of State Frank Marsh pointed out another Arthur J. Weaver of Omaha also is a candidate for delegate to the same convention.

State law permits up to five words to identify a candidate if the candidate so requests.

Deputy Roland Luedtke said the Lincoln man's request would be granted.

2 Fremont Package Liquor Permits Denied

The Liquor Commission Wednesday reported denial of two Fremont package liquor license applications on recommendation of the City Council.

The applicants were Adolph Cloeter and Joseph Jenny, and Fred Wislicen.

The package liquor application of Mary E. Connerley of Fremont, was withdrawn.

Fate Of Ulysses High School Rests With Community's Residents

By DEL HARDING
Star Staff Writer

ULYSSES, Neb — Ulysses, faced with loss of accreditation and since consolidation efforts have apparently failed, may close its high school next year. Ulysses is located 18 miles northwest of Seward in Butler County.

The State Board of Education has given Ulysses High School until June of 1957 to institute home economics and farm shop departments and a library or face loss of state approval. A library is being added, but persons in the Ulysses school district feel the expense of home ec and shop departments should be borne by the whole area which sends students to the high school.

School Supt. John Mettlen estimated a levy of "50 or 60 mills" would be required in the Ulysses district (Butler County Dist. 51) to finance the needed improvements. The present levy is 27.3 mills.

Re-Districting Plan

In an attempt to solve the problem, Ulysses school officials worked out a re-districting plan, under which all or parts of seven Butler County and three Seward County districts which now contribute most of Ulysses High School's students would consolidate. Then the new district would vote on a $190,000 school bond issue which would finance a new high school.

Mrs. Della Kobza, president of the Ulysses school board, said if consolidation were approved the levy would be slightly over 18 mills in the new district. The levies in the 10 districts now range from four to 27.3 mills.

Mettlen indicated Ulysses school district residents soon might rebel against continued raising of the district's levy, and that unless re-districting were worked out they night favor closing the school rather than trying to finance it with increasingly high levies.

JOHN METTLEN . . . Ulysses school superintendent.

Approval of a school consolidation proposal must be secured from the county re-districting committee.

In an action which, in the words of one Ulysses official, "really threw a wrench into the plan," the Seward County School Re-districting Committee declined to approve the plan proposed by Ulysses.

Much Opposition

The group said if consolidation were put before the voters in the three Seward County districts it would be voted against by 75 per cent of the voters, Mrs. Kobza reported.

Mrs. Kobza said the Butler County School Re-districting Committee, after being informed of the Seward committee's action, told the Ulysses school officials to work out a new plan, leaving out the three Seward County districts.

She said this possibility will be taken up at a meeting Thursday which was called so that Ulysses residents may discuss the situation and decide what to do. The possibility of closing the school will no doubt also be taken up.

A reliable source has said David City would be willing to accept the Ulysses students if the high school here closes.

The re-hiring and hiring of teachers for Ulysses High School has been held up pending the outcome of consolidation negotiations. Mettlen said now many of the present teachers have taken other positions and that nearly a whole new staff will have to be found.

"You just can not convince rural residents that re-organization is needed," he declared. In other communities where the high school has been closed, he said, an "immediate slump" in business has been noted.

Comment from school board officials in the three Seward County districts involved in the proposed consolidation varied.

Florian Geiger, president of Seward County's District 41, said he "personally" was "in favor" of consolidation. He said he definitely felt a high school at Ulysses is needed. The voters in his district, he said, are about evenly divided concerning the consolidation proposal.

MRS. KOBZA . . . school board president.

He said the prospect of higher taxes was the "only reason" District 41 voters would oppose it. He termed it a case of "putting the pocketbook before the child." The mill levy is now 11.62 in his district.

Louis Zitek, treasurer of Seward County's Dist. 43, said persons in his district like the present setup. "If we had a vote in this district, it (the proposed consolidation) wouldn't go through, I know," he said. Asked if he thought a high school was needed at Ulysses he said it was "all right" to have one there. The levy in his district is now 8.48 mills.

Ben Kamprath, president of Seward County's District 15, said "most" high school students in his district attend Seward High School. He said he thought nearly all persons in his district opposed the consolidation proposal, and that closing of the Ulysses High School would cause no great difficulty in District 15. The levy in his district is now 13.04.

Mettlen said the consolidation and accreditation problems will have no effect on the Ulysses grade school. It would remain open if the high school closes, he said.

There the problem stands. Ulysses school officials hope their meeting tonight will help solve the situation.

He said the prospect of higher taxes was the "only reason" District 41 voters would oppose it. He termed it a case of "putting the pocketbook before the child." The mill levy is now 11.62 in his district.

Louis Zitek, treasurer of Seward County's Dist. 43, said persons in his district like the present setup. "If we had a vote in this district, it (the proposed consolidation) wouldn't go through, I know," he said. Asked if he thought a high school was needed at Ulysses he said it was "all right" to have one there. The levy in his district is now 8.48 mills.

Ben Kamprath, president of Seward County's District 15, said "most" high school students in his district attend Seward High School. He said he thought nearly all persons in his district opposed the consolidation proposal, and that closing of the Ulysses High School would cause no great difficulty in District 15. The levy in his district is now 13.04.

Mettlen said the consolidation and accreditation problems will have no effect on the Ulysses grade school. It would remain open if the high school closes, he said.

There the problem stands. Ulysses school officials hope their meeting tonight will help solve the situation.

Marsh Ruling Awaited On Mrs. Orme's Filing

By ARCH DONOVAN
Star Staff Writer

Former Councilwoman Fern Hubbard Orme Wednesday heard one of her opponents, Russell R Strom, Jr., appeal to Secretary of State Frank Marsh to have her name kept from the ballot as a candidate for the Legislature in the 20th district Marsh withheld ruling until he has studied the testimony

Mrs Orme, wearing a trim blue suit with a round white spring hat and a red corsage, appeared with her attorney Lloyd Marti who told Marsh the burden of proof is on the objector and that he is required to presume validity of the filing until it is proved otherwise

The candidate for the non-partisan seat in the Legislature told how she had filed twice, once before her resignation from the city council and once after. She said both were accepted by the office of the secretary of state. She said the filing was made in good faith and that since then she has "definitely not participated in council activities

Minutes Introduced

Strom had as a witness City Clerk Theo H Berg and introduced copies of the minutes with the resignation and acceptance by the city charter and code.

From this he argued that a city Council member holds office until his successor has been named and "qualified" This he argued was not done in the Orme case.

Mrs. Orme said that she filed for the office and then told Mayor Clark Jeary, who advised that she should resign first to meet state law. She asked that a meeting of the council be called to receive her resignation

"I was scrubbing the kitchen floor when the mayor called telling of the special meeting," Mrs Orme testified

Luedtke Called

Marti called Roland Luedtke, deputy secretary of state, who told of the filings. He said she first filed about 11.30 a m and withdrew it at 4 p m. on April 5. A second filing was made at 4.40 p m, he said

Marti expressed the opinion that Mrs. Orme was the only candidate who had paid $20 to file for the Legislature. Normal filing fee is $10.

From Berg, Marti obtained the admission that Mrs Orme has been considered not a member of the council since her resignation and has not been notified of events taking place. This came on cross-examination.

Many Women

The audience consisted of more than 50 women and less than 10 men, and very much resembled a political meeting rather than a formal hearing. Mrs. Orme greeted most of the audience on arrival with smiles and handshakes. Strom addressed the audience rather than the secretary of state until Marti objected.

Strom insisted that the strict wording of the statutes and city charter and code should be observed Marti pointed out that the intent of the Legislature must first be sought

Marti gave the history leading up to the bill's introduction.

Floyd Bollen, railway commissioner, filed for the U.S. Senate, he said and Judge Herbert Rhoades of Omaha filed for Congress. Neither resigned from the office they held until the results of the election were obtained.

'Gambling'

"They were gambling on the outcome of the election," Marti said, holding on to a sure job until they learned whether they had obtained another. This led to the change in the law requiring office holders to file 50 days before election and others 40 days

Marti argued that Mrs. Orme was not and is not an office holder. He recalled that the Supreme Court had sustained Lincoln Mayor Oren Copeland who filed for Congress 20 minutes after he resigned the city post. Marti said Justice Eberly dismissied objections without writing an opinion.

"No one can force anyone to serve in office," Marti explained in showing that "qualification" of a successor is sometimes impossible.

The opinion of the Supreme Court had previously been given by the attorney general and at the hearing the judge told assistant attorney generals there was no reason for them to speak. Marti said he agreed with the others.

Strom in closing said that the "plain wording of the statute" proved that Mrs. Orme "did not effectively resign" before her filing.

Uniform Maker Refuses To Say How He Bought $6 Million Worth Of Bonds

WASHINGTON (INS) — A maker of Army uniforms who swore "clothing is a poor business" refused to inform Senate investigators how he bought six million dollars worth of bonds in 1951 and 1952

Joseph Abrams of Great Neck, N. Y., pleaded possible self-incrimination and declined to tell the Senate Investigations sub-committee whether he ever gave "any government official any gift, any gratuity, of any kind."

He invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked whether he used the bonds partly to evade income taxes or to "Bribe public officers" [illegible] later denied giving bonds to government personnel

The husky, 41-year-old New Yorker — under indictment for alleged theft of Army-furnished textiles — testified after two of his associates also balked at telling about the mysterious bond transactions and government contracts.

Action Threatened

Subcommittee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark), and Sen. Joseph R McCarthy (R-Wis), threatened contempt action against Abrams and these other witnesses:

1. Murray Berman, of Island Park, N Y., who would not say whether he signed checks for $150,000 in federal, state and municipal bonds bought by Abrams, although he said he knew of no "payments or gifts to government officials with respect to military clothing contracts."

2. Harold (Harry) Hyman of Rockville Center, N Y., refused to tell of his relations with Abrams, but, described as "incorrect" an earlier witness' claim that he offered to sell $50,000 worth of bonds for $40,000 if a buyer would refrain from cashing them until after a federal investigation of Abrams.

Berman and Hyman both based their hesitation at answering on an indictment pending against them in New York for "misappropriation of government material."

Abrams' attorney, Russell Brown, said his client also was under investigation for tax evasion, which prevented his answering queries related to the indictment.

Construction Resumed On 4 New Schools

Lincoln Star Special

BEATRICE, Neb.—Work was resumed Wednesday on all four Beatrice elementary schools under construction as a week old protest against non-payment of union wages to laborers ended.

Pickets who had been walking at each of the school sites were not on duty Wednesday morning. Late Tuesday, carpenters, laborers and other workers ignored the pickets and went back to work anyway.

Wednesday union officials could not be reached to determine if a settlement had been reached or not.

A company spokesman had stated that the Skyhook Lift-slab equipment would have to be moved to Aurora, Ill., on another job if work did not resume at Beatrice. School officials hope to have Lincoln School ready for occupancy next fall.

Apartment House Request Denied

The City Planning Commission has denied a request for a change in zoning from two family to multiple dwelling of property at the northeast corner of 33rd and Randolph.

Uniform Maker Refuses To Say How He Bought $6 Million Worth Of Bonds

WASHINGTON (INS) — A maker of Army uniforms who swore "clothing is a poor business' refused to inform Senate investigators how he bought six million dollars worth of bonds in 1951 and 1952.

Joseph Abrams of Great Neck, N. Y., pleaded possible self-incrimination and declined to tell the Senate Investigations sub-committee whether he ever gave "any government official any gift, any gratuity, of any kind."

He invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked whether he used the bonds partly to evade income taxes or to "Bribe public officers" but later denied giving bonds to government personnel.

The husky, 41-year-old New Yorker—under indictment for alleged theft of Army-furnished textiles—testified after two of his associates also balked at telling about the mysterious bond transactions and government contracts.

Action Threatened

Subcommittee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark), and Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis), threatened contempt action against Abrams and these other witnesses:

1. Murray Berman, of Island Park, N.Y., who would not say whether he signed checks for $150,000 in federal, state and municipal bonds bought by Abrams, although he said he knew of no "payments or gifts to government officials with respect to military clothing contracts."

2. Harold (Harry) Hyman, of Rockville Center, N.Y., refused to tell of his relations with Abrams, but described as "incorrect" an earlier witness' claim that he offered to sell $50,000 worth of bonds for $40,000 if a buyer would refrain from cashing them until after a federal investigation of Abrams.

Berman and Hyman both based their hesitation at answering on an indictment pending against them in New York for "misappropriation of government material."

Abrams' attorney, Russell Brown, said his client also was under investigation for tax evasion, which prevented his answering queries related to the indictment.

Air Force Unveils Its Advanced Base For Testing Top Rockets

By VERN HAUGLAND

CANOGA PARK, Calif (AP) — The Air Force Wednesday lifted some of the secrecy surrounding what may be the world's most advanced facilities for testing the world's most powerful rockets

Newsmen were permitted to describe a visit to the Air Force Propulsion Field Laboratory hidden away in the Santa Susana Mountains, 35 miles northwest of Los Angeles, where they witnessed the testing of component parts of a tremendously powerful rocket engine

The laboratory was jointly financed by the Air Force and North American Aviation, Inc for the development and static testing—that is, testing on the ground rather than in flight—of rocket engines for various missiles under development for the Air Force Army and Navy. It is operated by Rocketdyne Division of North American, which has its headquarters here five miles from the test facility

5,000 Miles

The size thrust and identity of the engine was not disclosed but it conceivably could have been of the type planned for the capability of flying as far as 5,000 miles at speeds up to 10,000 miles per hour

North American is reported to be working on such a rocket engine for the Convair Atlas Intercontinental Ballistic Missile which if successful, would be able to deliver a nuclear warhead from the United States to points as far away as Moscow in half an hour

I A Broadston, manager of the laboratory, emphasized that the device being demonstrated was not itself a rocket engine but a thrust chamber in which the characteristics of various components of an extremely powerful rocket could be analyzed

Under newly tightened security orders from the Defense Department North American was not permitted even to discuss previously announced missile projects for which it is working here

Ram Jet

[illegible] worked on the North American Navaho, a remarkable intercontinental ram jet powered guided missile now under flight test at the Air Force missile test center at Patrick Air Force Base Fla

The Navaho is capable of flying 5,000 miles at velocities of two or three times the speed of sound

The Santa Susana laboratory also has tested the rocket engines which Rocketdyne has developed and is supplying for the Redstone surface to surface ballistic missile program of the Army Ordnance Division

[illegible] flames [illegible] from the exit cone of the thrust chamber kicked up a huge towering cloud of dust mixed with smoke

The visitors also saw the test firing of the engine of a small wind tunnel model size rocket From a distance of 200 feet, compared with the distance of 1,000 feet for the large rocket engine the shrill noise of the small engine was so deafening that watchers had to cover their ears

L L Waite vice president in charge of the Rocketdyne Division told the visitors that the facility was designed for the static firing of probably the largest thrust rocket engine in the world"

Samuel K Hoffman, Rocketdyne general manager, added that "You are witnessing here the early stages of the development of a new industry"

Broadston said the laboratory control room contained 75 to 150 instruments to measure pressures forces speeds and rotations and 30 to 60 measurements of positions and sequences in fractions of seconds

Chadron Airport Bid Opening Slated May 7

CHADRON, Neb (AP)—Bids will be opened by the Chadron City Council May 7 for improvement of Chadron's municipal airport runways Cost of the job has been estimated at $89,000.

Under newly tightened security orders from the Defense Department, North American was not permitted even to discuss previously announced missile projects upon which it is working here.

Ram-Jet

However, its field test laboratory has worked on the North American Navaho, a remarkable intercontinental ram-jet powered guided missile now under flight test at the Air Force missile test center at Patrick Air Force Base, Fla.

The Navaho is capable of flying 5,000 miles at velocities of two or three times the speed of sound.

The Santa Susana laboratory also has tested the rocket engines which Rocketdyne has developed and is supplying for the Redstone surface-to-surface ballistic missile program of the Army Ordnance Division.

In the first public testing of one of its engines, presumably well above 100,000 pounds of thrust, the flames roaring from the exhaust cone of the thrust chamber kicked up a huge rolling cloud of dust mixed with smoke.

The visitors also saw the test firing of the engine of a small wind tunnel model size rocket. From a distance of 200 feet, compared with the distance of 1,000 feet for the large rocket engine, the shrill noise of the small engine was so deafening that watchers had to cover their ears.

L. L. Waite, vice president in charge of the Rocketdyne Division, told the visitors that the facility was designed for the static firing of "probably the largest thrust rocket engine in the world."

Samuel K. Hoffman, Rocketdyne general manager, added that "You are witnessing here the early stages of the development of a new industry."

Broadston said the laboratory control room contained 75 to 150 instriments to measure pressures, forces, speeds and rotations, and 30 to 60 measurements of positions and sequences in fractions of seconds.

4 Youngsters Taken From Parents' Care

Four children taken from their home Sunday by police were removed from custody of their parents Wednesday by Juvenile Court.

Seven adults, including the parents, have been charged with contributing to the delinquency of the children. All pleaded innocent.

Custody of the four, ages 2, 4, 5 and 9, was removed until the parents show they can provide a suitable home for the children, according to Judge Harry Spencer.

Policewoman Hulda Roper, armed with pictures taken at the home when the children were removed, said there was evidence that the parents and five other adults had been drinking heavily. She said the children were unclean, unfed and uncared for by the parents.

All seven adults are scheduled to appear in County Court April 30 on the contributing charges after all pleaded innocent and were placed under $300 bond each.

Liquor Spilled In Small Fire

The contents of several bottles of whiskey at Dittmer's Liquor Store, 1008 P St., were dumped on the floor Wednesday when a display unit near the cash register burst into flames. The only damage was to the display and the broken bottles.

Clerk Millie Bodkin, 2225 Holdrege, said she had just waited on a customer when the fire burst out. The man told her:

"Your place is on fire." Then he sprinted out of the store, Mrs. Bodkin said.

Firemen put down the flames before they spread to a store counter. The fire was believed to have started either from a hot lightbulb or from a match.

Press Warned Secrecy Is Expanding

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report of the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE) Wednesday warned the press that "the fear of external danger is expanding the area of secrecy" in the government.

The society's freedom of information committee reported "many gains as well as some losses" in the past year's fight against news suppression. It advised editors to maintain their vigilance.

The report was presented to the society's board of directors and distributed to some 400 ASNE members arriving for the opening Thursday of the three-day annual ASNE meeting.

President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson will address the meeting Saturday, the President at dinner and the Democratic aspirant at luncheon. Eisenhower has scheduled a major foreign policy speech.

'Candor'

The freedom of information committee, headed by J. Russell Wiggins, executive editor of the Washington Post and Times Herald, listed among the past year's gains the "unprecedented candor" of the White House in handling the facts of the President's heart attack.

But on the loss side, it said, were a series of encroachments by the Defense Department and other agencies on the liberalized information policy adopted by Eisenhower in 1953.

The report listed a series of ASNE clashes with Secretary of Defense Wilson over military news barriers. In protesting, the committee said, the newspapers have been "waging a fight for the right of the people to know about government operations that take most of the citizen's tax money and upon which the nation's very survival may depend."

Dissatisfaction with recent news blocks at the Commerce Department, office of Defense Mobilizaton, Atomic Energy Commission and other agencies was voiced also. The report went on:

"These are by no means the only instances of spreading secrecy in military and other governmental matters. They are, however, symtomatic of a trend which it is to be hoped can yet be reversed . . .

Secrecy Itch

"Legislative departments are by no means immune to the itch for secrecy. Congressional committees meet entirely too often in secret sessions, in spite of the plain intent of the acts of Congress, . . ."

The outstanding gain of the year, the editors were told, was the investigation of news suppression by the House government operations subcommittee headed by Rep. Moss (D-Calif).

This has laid a foundation for legislation which, if adopted, will "improve greatly the legal right to know," the Wiggins committee said.

ASNE's directors elected one editor—Richard S. Jackson, assistant publisher of the New Haven (Conn.) Register — to regular membership. It granted a "distinguished service membership" to Hamilton Owens, veteran editor-in-chief of the Baltimore Sun. Owens thus becomes a life member, in recognition of outstanding services to the profession.

Frank Ellsworth's Mother Loses Life

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—One of the key witnesses for two defendants in the Rossman murder trial has died, it was disclosed.

Counsel for Frank J. Ellsworth, 36, of Tampa, Fla., told the court that Mrs. Anna Ellsworth, his client's mother, died of a heart attack in her Omaha, Neb., home.

Ellsworth isn't on trial, but he's a co-defendant of Raymond P. Wilson, 33-year-old Tulsa, Okla., ex-convict, who pleaded innocent to the killing and robbery of a wealthy Philadelphia widow, Mrs. Lulubel Rossman, last July.

Ellsworth—under order of quarter sessions Judge Eugene V. Alessandroni to be in court daily—broke down when told the news by his lawyer, Paul Yermish. Later he asked to be excused from the courtroom and Yermish asked permission for Ellsworth to attend the funeral.

Pen Inmates Pardoned Under New Split-Hearings Program

By ARCH DONOVAN
Star Staff Writer

The state Pardon Board Wednesday initiated a new plan to split up clemency hearings at the Penitentiary and Men's Reformatory over two days.

From the Penitentiary there were two cases involving killings. Other cases involved forgery or obtaining money under false pretenses.

All but four received varying degrees of clemency.

The life sentence of William Bowman, 41, Sidney, one of two men connected with the 1937 death of 89-year-old William Moore of Sidney was commuted to 40 years.

The sentence of Orville Childers, allegedly involved with Bowman, already had been commuted from life to 40 years. P. J. Heaton, Sidney, who was county attorney at the time, opposed clemency saying "a life sentence means life until death."

The pair beat and gagged Moore when he resisted after they entered his home in search of money, the trial showed.

Clemency Refused

The board refused clemency to Steve S. Wilczynski, 34, of Omaha serving five years for shooting to death Charles Jelinek, a Sarpy County tavern operator in 1954. Brothers and sisters of the slain man appeared and opposed clemency.

Wilczynski told the board the shooting was the result of a dispute over $2 he owed Jelinek. "I had a hell of a time getting 50 cents and I was his brother so it doesn't look as though he would loan a stranger $2," a brother told the board.

Answering his claim to self defense and that he was about to go to target practice, the brothers and sisters said five shots would not be necessary to stop arguments and that target practice is not usual at closing time of taverns.

Harold R. Haws, 27, Texas, who issued a no-account check in Scottsbluff County and was sentenced to two years in 1955 said the Nebraska prison had taught him a lesson.

"This is a human garbage pile," he said. "They think, act and talk different than I ever did." He was commuted to Texas where he faced other charges.

Actions by the board were:

William Bowman, 41, Sidney, first degree murder, Cheyenne County, life sentence from 1937, commuted to 40 years.

Harold Dalton, 27, [illegible] check, Douglas County, three years, 1954, paroled.

Bruce [illegible], 31, Texas, obtaining money under false pretenses, [illegible], three years, 1954, committed to [illegible].

George H. [illegible], 62, St. Louis, Mo., forgery, Gage, six years, [illegible], denied.

Paul [illegible], 30, [illegible], forgery, Gage, six years, 1955, denied.

[illegible], 58, [illegible], forgery, Lancaster, ten years, [illegible], denied.

Steve S. Wilczynski, 34, Omaha, manslaughter, Sarpy, five years, 1954, denied.

Warren H. [illegible], 30, Rapid City, S. Dak., forgery, Scotts Bluff, five years, 1955, commuted to South Dakota.

William F. Fisher, 27, Virginia, forgery, Scotts Bluff, five years, 1955, commuted.

Harold R. Haws, 27, Texas, Scotts Bluff, two years, 1955, commuted to Texas.

5 Bodies Found In Skid Row Hotel; Cops Probe Case

CHICAGO (INS)—Discovery of five bodies in two days in a skid row Chicago Hotel prompted an investigation by police into the mysterious deaths.

Autopsies were ordered to determine the exact cause of death.

The bottling company routeman spit out the 1½ inch long bullet Saturday.

Pen Inmates Pardoned Under New Split-Hearings Program

By ARCH DONOVAN
Star Staff Writer

The state Pardon Board Wednesday initiated a new plan to split up clemency hearings at the Penitentiary and Men's Reformatory over two days.

From the Penitentiary there were two cases involving killings. Other cases involved forgery or obtaining money under false pretenses.

All but four received varying degrees of clemency.

The life sentence of William Bowman, 41, Sidney, one of two men connected with the 1937 death of 89-year-old William Moore of Sidney was commuted to 40 years.

The sentence of Orville Childers, allegedly involved with Bowman, already had been commuted from life to 40 years. P. J. Heaton, Sidney, who was county attorney at the time, opposed clemency saying "a life sentence means life until death."

The pair beat and gagged Moore when he resisted after they entered his home in search of money, the trial showed.

Clemency Refused

The board refused clemency to Steve S. Wilczynski, 34, of Omaha serving five years for shooting to death Charles Jelinek, a Sarpy County tavern operator in 1954. Brothers and sisters of the slain man appeared and opposed clemency.

Wilczynski told the board the shooting was the result of a dispute over $2 he owed Jelinek. "I had a hell of a time getting 50 cents and I was his brother so it doesn't look as though he would loan a stranger $2," a brother told the board.

Answering his claim to self defense and that he was about to go to target practice, the brothers and sisters said five shots would not be necessary to stop arguments and that target practice is not usual at closing time of taverns.

Harold R. Haws, 27, Texas, who issued a no-account check in Scottsbluff County and was sentenced to two years in 1955 said the Nebraska prison had taught him a lesson.

"This is a human garbage pile," he said. "They think, act and talk different than I ever did." He was commuted to Texas where he faced other charges.

Actions by the board were:

William Bowman, 41, Sidney, first degree murder, Cheyenne County, life sentence, from 1937; commuted to 40 years.
Harold Dalton, 27, Utah, check, Douglas County, three years, 1954; paroled.
Bruce Hughes, 51, Texas, obtaining money under false pretenses, Dundy, three years, 1954; commuted to date.
George H. Schittler, 62, St. Louis, Mo., forgery, Gage, six years, 1953; denied.
Paul Mathes, 36, Oklahoma, forgery, Gage, six years, 1953; denied.
Philip Gibbons, 68, transient, forgery, Lancaster, ten years, 1949; denied.
Steve S. Wilczynski, 34, Omaha, manslaughter, Sarpy, five years, 1954; denied.
Warren H. Martindale, 46, Rapid City, S. D., forgery, Scotts Bluff, ten years, 1951; commuted to South Dakota.
William F. Fisher, 37, Virginia, forgery, Scotts Bluff, five years, 1953; commuted.
Harold R. Haws, 27, Texas, Scotts Bluff, two years, 1955; commuted to Texas.
George Burback, 29, Scotts Bluff, check and violation bench parole, Scotts Bluff, three years, 1955; paroled.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Illegal Defense

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The defendant contended it was all a misunderstanding when he drew a $200 fine and a suspended 60 day jail sentence on a charge of illegal sale and possession of liquor. He told the judge that he had just been following Civil Defense instructions to have ample supplies of basic essentials on hand in case of an A-bomb emergency. An inspector found 41 fifths and 24 pints of wine in the man's room.

CHIEFS KICK OFF SEASON TONIGHT

Dewey Williams Will Start; Weather For Opener 'Cold'

By DON BRYANT
Sports Editor, The Star

TOPEKA, Kan. — Baseball-crazy Topeka is all aflutter in anticipation of tonight

At the stroke of 8 p m, the Lincoln Chief's will meet the Topeka Hawks in the 1956 Western League inaugural. Some 4,000 Topekans, happy and jumping like kids on Christmas morning, are expected to be on hand for the opening festivities and the game.

Thursday's game between the Chiefs and the Hawks will mark the Kansas capital city's return to organized baseball after a year's absence In 1954 Topeka was a member of the Western Association which closed shop after that season.

Now Topeka is one of three new members of the Western League, itself bubbling with enthusiasm because it is once again an eight-team league to start its 10th year since revival Last year six clubs carried on when Omaha and Denver were ushered into the American Association Other 1956 newcomers are Amarillo and Albuquerque

But on with the game. Lincoln manager Larry Shepard has awarded the opening pitching job to righthander Dewey Williams, who last year posted a 3-5 mark with the Chiefs after joining the club late in July. Dewey trained with New Orleans this spring and Shepard is very keen on the big righthander.

"He has looked tremendous this spring," Shepard said Wednesday "If he doesn't win 18 games this year, I'll be greatly surprised"

Williams will be opposed by an old Lincoln nemesis, Lefty Jack O'Donnell Tricky Jack, purchased from Wichita when the former WL club joined the American Association, has frequently given the Chiefs trouble — either with his southpaw slants or his dangerous bat.

Last year with Wichita, O'Donnell hit 600 as a pinchhitter

Shepard has most of his opening lineup set, but two outfield positions are in question.

In centerfield, it will be either Jack Wilson, who hit .349 in Class D last year, or Earl Smith, who divided his time between Lincoln and Phoenix in 1955, hitting 250 with the Chiefs and .297 in the Class C loop.

And over in left, Larry is undecided between Tony Iammatteo, a 329 hitter with good power in Class C last season and Sam Miley, who hit 332 with Waco in Class B in 1955.

Miley and Wilson are left-handed hitters and the other two swing from the right.

Williams' battery mate will be Joe Zavattaro, right-hand hitting catcher who posted a .254 average in Class C last year.

The rest of the Lincoln lineup shapes up like this

Dick Stuart (309 in Class C), first base; Kenny Toothman (294 in Class B), second base, Ray Swarts, who hit 278 as an outfielder with New Orleans last year but who has been switched to an infielder, shortstop, John McDevitt (a returnee from the Army), third base, and Reggie Grenald (.309 in Class A), right field.

Meanwhile, Manager Buddy Bates of Topeka, is still hoping Allan Weygandt, optioned by the New York Yankees, will arrive in time to handle first base in the opener Buddy has Weygandt listed as the cleanup hitter and if he doesn't arrive the Hawks' skipper will have to do some last minute juggling

Topeka's ball park has been completely renovated for the entry into Class A baseball. With the exception of the outfield — where the grass is only about an inch high — all looks well. The infield has been newly-sodded and seems playable.

Lincoln's team arrived here Wednesday morning and staged a lengthy drill at the park Wednesday morning But that was a mere sidelight to the holiday spree that Topeka has embarked on via the national pasttime

Wednesday night there was a band-sprinkled parade, complete with local dignitaries, the players —each accompanied in the convertibles by lovely young lassies — and all the trimmings.

Biggest worry concerning opening night is the weather. It's been cold in Topeka. The forecast calls for temps in the 60s Thursday, but it's likely the game will be played with the mercury somewhere around 40.

But that probably won't prevent Topekans from storming the gates of Community Park

The two teams will meet again Friday night and then move to Lincoln for a two game stand. Shepard indicated Wednesday he would pitch Cleo Lewright Friday night and open at Sherman Field with Bennie Daniels. Both are righthanders.

Probable batting orders for opening night:

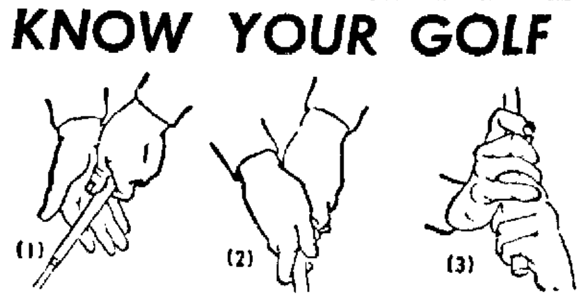
KNOW YOUR GOLF



By TOMMY ARMOUR
(Eighth of a series)

We've seen what the duty of each hand is in achieving the correct grip Now let's join the hands First grip the club properly with the left hand, making sure that the last three fingers are doing most of the work and that the V points to your right shoulder. Now bring the right hand up as shown in Fig 1. Next, place the butt of the right thumb securely over the left thumb. Wrap the right thumb and forefinger around the club (Fig 2) so that they assume that feeling of trigger action The V of the right thumb and forefinger should also point to the right shoulder Fig 3 an inverted view, shows how the other fingers of the right hand should be placed.

Only 27 Minor Leagues Head Into '56 Campaign

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Minor league baseball heads into the 1956 campaign with 27 circuits and 209 clubs in operation the seventh straight year a decided drop has occurred in each category.

Since the 1955 season, six loops made up of 38 teams have disbanded — two after being in operation a half century Two others merged into a single league, and a new one was formed.

Back in 1943, in the midst of the war, only 10 leagues and 66 teams were in the minor-league fold Then the boom started, and by 1949 the peak was reached with 59 leagues and 444 clubs scattered all over the country

Then came the decline In 1950 there were 58 leagues The total dropped to 50 in 1951, to 43 in 1952, to 38 in 1953, to 36 in 1954, and 33 last season This year's six-league loss is the greatest since seven dropped out between the 1951 and 1952 seasons

The Kitty League, first Class D circuit in the country when it was organized in 1903, was among this year's casualties, as was the Class C Cotton States loop which had been in existence around 50 years Others tossing in the towel were the Class D Appalachian the Class C Provincial and the Class B Piedmont and Tri-State

The 38 teams in those loops attracted a total of 1,502,033 fans last season, an average of only 39,527, which George M Trautman, president of the National Assn. of Professional Baseball Leagues, said "just isn't enough."

Attendance Minimums

Trautman estimated a Class D club should attract 50,000, Class C 60,000 to 65,000, and Class B at least 75,000 to survive—but said concessions, advertising and aid on optioned players would be necessary to make a venture successful, even with the higher attendance.

Back in 1949, when the minors hit their peak, 41,872,762 fans made the turnstiles click. Then attendance started to drop, and the 1955 total for regular-season, all star, play-off and inter-league series games was down to 19,042,825

In 1949 the 59 leagues drew an average attendance of 709 707 The 33 loops last year averaged 577 055, a drop of 132 652 per circuit

In addition to the six leagues which folded this year, the Class B Texas-New Mexico League and the Class C Longshorn merged their 16 teams into the new eight-club Class B Southwestern circuit. Newcomer to the national association fold is the Class C Central loop of Mexico.

Despite the steady drop in leagues, teams and attendance, Trautman maintained an optimistic outlook

"We are in a period of transition, and may have turned the corner," he said. "We still have all the playing talent, but fewer leagues and teams, so there will be a greater concentration of playing strength, which should result in stronger, more interesting teams.

Record Entry Seen In Bowling Meet

GRAND ISLAND (AP) —The annual Dreisbach's Men's Handicap bowling tournament will again be held at the Rockwell Alleys here, with a record entry expected The tourney will run two week-ends, April 28-29 and May 5-6.

Bowling teams from about 30 towns already have entered. Included are four teams from Norton, Kansas, two from Colby, Kan., and one from Yankton, S D.

The Dreisbach meet is one of the state's largest open tournaments, with more than $2,000 distributed as prizes last year. Indications are that the meet this year will surpass last year's entry.

An innovation this year will be in the doubles and singles, where three bowlers will be assigned to each alley, rather than two, on Sunday shifts. The change is made to allow more rest between shots.

Last year champions were Tip Top Bar of Columbus in the team event; B. Bliss and W. Camp of Fremont in the doubles, C. Jensen of Cozad in the singles and Blake Gladfelter of Columbus in the all-events. All except Bliss and Camp already have entered this year.

Willie Mays Stars Again As Giants Trip Pirates

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays, for the second straight day, was the big gun as the New York Giants came from behind to defeat Pittsburgh 5 4 Wednesday It was New York's second one-run decision over the Pirates in as many days.

Mays, who scored the winning run with a fine bit of base running Tuesday, won the game with his bat Wednesday He singled with two out in the ninth inning to score Whitey Lockman from second with the winning run

The Giants were trailing 4-3 going into the bottom of the ninth and had been completely baffled by Vernon Law who had retired 10 straight batters in a brilliant relief exhibition Pittsburgh, trailing 3-0 early in the game, had fought back to tie the game at 3-3 on a home run by Frank Thomas and Roberto Clemente's two run single The Pirates finally went ahead in the seventh when Thomas clouted his second home run, off relief pitcher Windy McCall.

Gail Harris finally solved Law for the Giants' first hit off him, singling to open the ninth Harris, however, was cut down trying for second on a fine throw by right fielder Lee Walls. Wes Westrum followed with a single and Gil Coan ran for him. Lockman, batting for McCall, walked and Don Mueller singled sharply to left filling the bases. Al Dark's fly to right scored Coan with the tying run before Mays came through with his game-winning hit to left center.

Lefthander Dick Littlefield and righthander Ruben Gomez were the starting pitchers but neither was around very long. Littlefield lasted only two innings, giving up four hits and three runs two of them coming on back-to-back homers by Foster Castleman and Harris in the second

Red Munger and rookie Jack McMahan held the Giants at bay until Law came on the scene with two out and two on base in the fifth Law walked Daryl Spencer to fill the bases but worked out of his jam by fanning pinch-hitter George Wilson

Gomez struck out four batters in the first two innings but lost his stuff in the fourth when Pittsburgh clubbed him for three runs. Thomas opened with a home run

Porterfield's Debut As Red Sox Is 8-4 Success

BOSTON (AP) — Boston broke loose for six runs in the fifth inning to defeat Baltimore 8 4 Wednesday while veteran Bob Porterfield made his successful pitching debut in a Red Sox uniform

Porterfield, acquired in the Washington trade along with first baseman Mickey Vernon, surrendered two run home runs to Gus Triandos and rookie center fielder Tito Francona

Beyond that, right-handed Robert was tough, indeed, hurling a five hitter He struck out five while walking five

Jimmy Piersall's accidental two run single was the vital blow in the big fifth when the Sox reached loser Ray Moore for four hits, four walks and a sacrifice fly

Trailing 4 2, the Sox loaded the bases on Moore as Billy Klaus singled and Ted Williams and Jackie Jensen walked Vernon's second hit of the day dropped in for a one-run single

At this juncture, Manager Mike Higgins inserted Gene Stephens as a pinch-runner for Williams on the windy, raw afternoon Ted singled to center and got two walks in his appearances to run his batting average to 800 for the first two days of the campaign

With the count 3 2, Piersall put up his bat in a protective motion and wound up with a looping single to right field

Porterfield accounted for the fifth run of the inning on a sacrifice fly After Billy Goodman's double and a walk, reliefer Don Ferrarese came in to walk pinch-hitter Dick Gernert and force another score home

Williams' first inning single drove in Goodman who had doubled to left and then Triandos hit a cap high 3 2 pitch into the left-field screen

Francona—getting only his second major league hit—slammed a 440 foot drive into the bleachers in right center in the fourth Triandos started the trouble by walking on four pitches as Porterfield cautiously kept his offerings low and outside

CHIEFS KICK OFF SEASON TONIGHT

Dewey Williams Will Start; Weather For Opener 'Cold'

By DON BRYANT
Sports Editor, The Star

TOPEKA, Kan. — Baseball-crazy Topeka is all aflutter in anticipation of tonight.

At the stroke of 8 p.m., the Lincoln Chief's will meet the Topeka Hawks in the 1956 Western League inaugural. Some 4,000 Topekans, happy and jumping like kids on Christmas morning, are expected to be on hand for the opening festivities and the game.

Thursday's game between the Chiefs and the Hawks will mark the Kansas capital city's return to organized baseball after a year's absence. In 1954 Topeka was a member of the Western Association which closed shop after that season.

Now Topeka is one of three new members of the Western League, itself bubbling with enthusiasm because it is once again an eight-team league to start its 10th year since revival. Last year six clubs carried on when Omaha and Denver were ushered into the American Association. Other 1956 newcomers are Amarillo and Albuquerque.

But on with the game. Lincoln manager Larry Shepard has awarded the opening pitching job to righthander Dewey Williams, who last year posted a 3-5 mark with the Chiefs after joining the club late in July. Dewey trained with New Orleans this spring and Shepard is very keen on the big righthander.

"He has looked tremendous this spring," Shepard said Wednesday. "If he doesn't win 18 games this year, I'll be greatly surprised."

Williams will be opposed by an old Lincoln nemesis, Lefty Jack O'Donnell. Tricky Jack, purchased from Wichita when the former WL club joined the American Association, has frequently given the Chiefs trouble — either with his southpaw slants or his dangerous bat.

Last year with Wichita, O'Donnell hit .600 as a pinchhitter.

Shepard has most of his opening lineup set, but two outfield positions are in question.

In centerfield, it will be either Jack Wilson, who hit .349 in Class D last year, or Earl Smith, who divided his time between Lincoln and Phoenix in 1955, hitting .250 with the Chiefs and .297 in the Class C loop.

And over in left, Larry is undecided between Tony Iammatteo, a .329 hitter with good power in Class C last season and Sam Miley, who hit .332 with Waco in Class B in 1955.

Miley and Wilson are left-handed hitters and the other two swing from the right.

Williams' battery mate will be Joe Zavattaro, right-hand hitting catcher who posted a .254 average in Class C last year.

The rest of the Lincoln lineup shapes up like this:

Dick Stuart (.309 in Class C), first base; Kenny Toothman (.294 in Class B), second base; Ray Swarts, who hit .278 as an outfielder with New Orleans last year but who has been switched to an infielder, shortstop; John McDevitt (a returnee from the Army), third base; and Reggie Grenald (.309 in Class A), right field.

Meanwhile, Manager Buddy Bates of Topeka, is still hoping Allan Weygandt, optioned by the New York Yankees, will arrive in time to handle first base in the opener. Buddy has Weygandt listed as the cleanup hitter and if he doesn't arrive, the Hawks' skipper will have to do some last minute juggling.

Topeka's ball park has been completely renovated for the entry into Class A baseball. With the exception of the outfield — where the grass is only about an inch high — all looks well. The infield has been newly-sodded and seems playable.

Lincoln's team arrived here Wednesday morning and staged a lengthy drill at the park Wednesday morning. But that was a mere sidelight to the holiday spree that Topeka has embarked on via the national pasttime.

Wednesday night there was a band-sprinkled parade, complete with local dignitaries, the players —each accompanied in the convertibles by lovely young lassies — and all the trimmings.

Biggest worry concerning opening night is the weather. It's been cold in Topeka. The forecast calls for temps in the 60s Thursday, but it's likely the game will be played with the mercury somewhere around 40.

But that probably won't prevent Topekans from storming the gates of Community Park.

The two teams will meet again Friday night and then move to Lincoln for a two game stand. Shepard indicated Wednesday he would pitch Cleo Lewright Friday night and open at Sherman Field with Bennie Daniels. Both are righthanders.

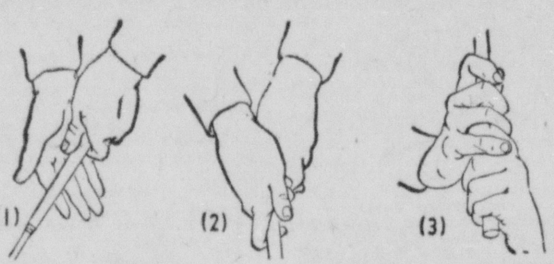
KNOW YOUR GOLF



By TOMMY ARMOUR
(Eighth of a series)

We've seen what the duty of each hand is in achieving the correct grip. Now let's join the hands. First, grip the club properly with the left hand, making sure that the last three fingers are doing most of the work and that the V points to your right shoulder. Now bring the right hand up as shown in Fig. 1. Next, place the butt of the right thumb securely over the left thumb. Wrap the right thumb and forefinger around the club (Fig. 2) so that they assume that feeling of trigger action. The V of the right thumb and forefinger should also point to the right shoulder. Fig. 3, an inverted view, shows how the other fingers of the right hand should be placed.

Only 27 Minor Leagues Head Into '56 Campaign

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Minor league baseball heads into the 1956 campaign with 27 circuits and 209 clubs in operation, the seventh straight year a decided drop has occurred in each category.

Since the 1955 season, six loops made up of 38 teams have disbanded — two after being in operation a half-century. Two others merged into a single league, and a new one was formed.

Back in 1943, in the midst of the war, only 10 leagues and 66 teams were in the minor-league fold. Then the boom started, and by 1949 the peak was reached with 59 leagues and 444 clubs scattered all over the country.

Then came the decline. In 1950 there were 58 leagues. The total dropped to 50 in 1951, to 43 in 1952, to 38 in 1953, to 36 in 1954, and 33 last season. This year's six-league loss is the greatest since seven dropped out between the 1951 and 1952 seasons.

The Kitty League, first Class D circuit in the country when it was organized in 1903, was among this year's casualties, as was the Class C Cotton States loop which had been in existence around 50 years. Others tossing in the towel were the Class D Appalachian, the Class C Provincial, and the Class B Piedmont and Tri-State.

The 38 teams in those loops attracted a total of 1,502,033 fans last season, an average of only 39,527, which George M. Trautman, president of the National Assn. of Professional Baseball Leagues, said "just isn't enough."

Attendance Minimums

Trautman estimated a Class D club should attract 50,000, Class C 60,000 to 65,000, and Class B at least 75,000 to survive—but said concessions, advertising and aid on optioned players would be necessary to make a venture successful, even with the higher attendance.

Back in 1949, when the minors hit their peak, 41,872,762 fans made the turnstiles click. Then attendance started to drop, and the 1955 total for regular-season, all-star, play-off and inter-league series games was down to 19,042,825.

In 1949 the 59 leagues drew an average attendance of 709,707. The 33 loops last year averaged 577,055, a drop of 132,652 per circuit.

In addition to the six leagues which folded this year, the Class B Texas-New Mexico League and the Class C Longshorn merged their 16 teams into the new eight-club Class B Southwestern circuit. Newcomer to the national association fold is the Class C Central loop of Mexico.

Despite the steady drop in leagues, teams and attendance, Trautman maintained an optimistic outlook.

"We are in a period of transition, and may have turned the corner," he said. "We still have all the playing talent, but fewer leagues and teams, so there will be a greater concentration of playing strength, which should result in stronger, more interesting teams.

Record Entry Seen In Bowling Meet

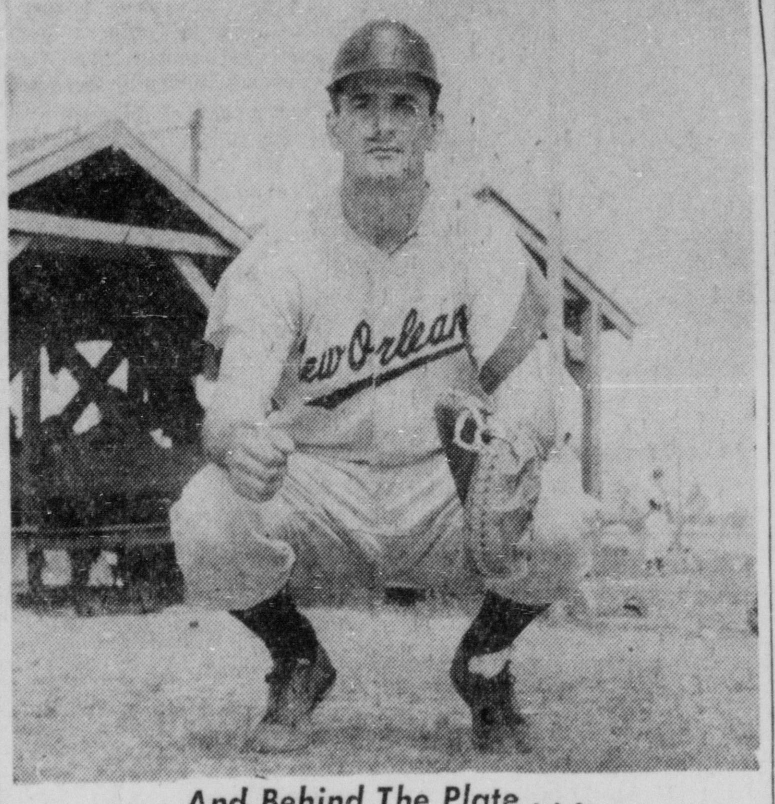
GRAND ISLAND (AP)—The annual Dreisbach's Men's Handicap bowling tournament will again be held at the Rockwell Alleys here, with a record entry expected. The tourney will run two week-ends, April 28-29 and May 5-6.

Bowling teams from about 30 towns already have entered. Included are four teams from Norton, Kansas, two from Colby, Kan., and one from Yankton, S. D.

The Dreisbach meet is one of the state's largest open tournaments, with more than $2,000 distributed as prizes last year. Indications are that the meet this year will surpass last year's entry.

An innovation this year will be in the doubles and singles, where three bowlers will be assigned to each alley, rather than two, on Sunday shifts. The change is made to allow more rest between shots.

Last year champions were Tip Top Bar of Columbus in the team event; B. Bliss and W. Camp of Fremont in the doubles; C. Jensen of Cozad in the singles and Blake Gladfelter of Columbus in the all-events. All except Bliss and Camp already have entered this year.



And Behind The Plate . . .

Joe Zavattaro, 23-year-old right-handed hitter, will be behind the plate tonight when the Lincoln Chiefs open their 1955 season at Topeka. A 6-foot, 185-pounder, Zavattaro batted .254 in Class C baseball last year.

Willie Mays Stars Again As Giants Trip Pirates

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays, for the second straight day, was the big gun as the New York Giants came from behind to defeat Pittsburgh 5-4 Wednesday. It was New York's second one-run decision over the Pirates in as many days.

Mays, who scored the winning run with a fine bit of base running Tuesday, won the game with his bat Wednesday. He singled with two out in the ninth inning to score Whitey Lockman from second with the winning run.

The Giants were trailing 4-3 going into the bottom of the ninth and had been completely baffled by Vernon Law who had retired 10 straight batters in a brilliant relief exhibition. Pittsburgh, trailing 3-0 early in the game, had fought back to tie the game at 3-3 on a home run by Frank Thomas and Roberto Clemente's two-run single. The Pirates finally went ahead in the seventh when Thomas clouted his second home run, off relief pitcher Windy McCall.

Gail Harris finally solved Law for the Giants' first hit off him, singling to open the ninth. Harris, however, was cut down trying for second on a fine throw by right fielder Lee Walls. Wes Westrum followed with a single and Gil Coan ran for him. Lockman, batting for McCall, walked and Don Mueller singled sharply to left filling the bases. Al Dark's fly to right scored Coan with the tying run before Mays came through with his game-winning hit to left center.

Lefthander Dick Littlefield and righthander Ruben Gomez were the starting pitchers but neither was around very long. Littlefield lasted only two innings, giving up four hits and three runs, two of them coming on back-to-back homers by Foster Castleman and Harris in the second.

Red Munger and rookie Jack McMahan held the Giants at bay until Law came on the scene with two out and two on base in the fifth. Law walked Daryl Spencer to fill the bases but worked out of his jam by fanning pinch-hitter George Wilson.

Gomez struck out four batters in the first two innings but lost his stuff in the fourth when Pittsburgh clubbed him for three runs. Thomas opened with a home run.

Gilbert Death 'Great Loss'

Nebraska sportsmen expressed a sense of great loss at the death of Paul Gilbert, secretary of the state game commission.

F. W. Langenheim, president of the Nebraska Better Fishing Association, said he felt Gilbert's death was "a great loss to the state. He gave a lot of help to the Better Fishing Association, and was a great help throughout the state."

Dr. H. C. Zellers, Lincoln sportsman and a past president of the Better Fishing Association, said "his loss is a very great one due to his intense interest and absolute sincerity in his work, especially in boys' activities.

"He will be greatly missed by sportsmen throughout the state. All members of the Nebraska Council of Sportsmen's Groups feel a deep sense of loss."

Porterfield's Debut As Red Sox Is 8-4 Success

BOSTON (AP) — Boston broke loose for six runs in the fifth inning to defeat Baltimore 8-4 Wednesday while veteran Bob Porterfield made his successful pitching debut in a Red Sox uniform.

Porterfield, acquired in the Washington trade along with first baseman Mickey Vernon, surrendered two-run home runs to Gus Triandos and rookie center-fielder Tito Francona.

Beyond that, right-handed Robert was tough, indeed, hurling a five-hitter. He struck out five while walking five.

Jimmy Piersall's accidental two-run single was the vital blow in the big fifth when the Sox reached loser Ray Moore for four hits, four walks and a sacrifice fly.

Trailing 4-2, the Sox loaded the bases on Moore as Billy Klaus singled and Ted Williams and Jackie Jensen walked. Vernon's second hit of the day dropped in for a one-run single.

At this juncture, Manager Mike Higgins inserted Gene Stephens as a pinch-runner for Williams on the windy, raw afternoon. Ted singled to center and got two walks in his appearances to run his batting average to .800 for the first two days of the campaign.

With the count 3-2, Piersall put up his bat in a protective motion and wound up with a looping single to right field.

Porterfield accounted for the fifth run of the inning on a sacrifice fly. After Billy Goodman's double and a walk, reliefer Don Ferrarese came in to walk pinch-hitter Dick Gernert and force another score home.

Williams' first-inning single drove in Goodman who had doubled to left and then Triandos hit a cap-high 3-2 pitch into the left-field screen.

Yankees Slam Wiesler, 9-5

WASHINGTON (AP) — The New York Yankees slammed their ex-teammate, Bob Wiesler, for six quick runs and defeated Washington, 9-5, Wednesday night. Johnny Kucks, who required aid from Jim Konstanty in the eighth, was the winner.

The Senators rallied for three runs in the eighth but with the bases loaded and two out Whitey Herzog grounded out to end the threat. Pete Runnels hit a home run with none aboard in the fourth for the Senators.

New York compiled 12 hits, amassing nine of them in the first four innings off Wiesler and Hal Griggs to grab a 9-1 lead.

Yogi Berra, who walked and then made four hits in Tuesday's opener, singled and then walked three times before Bob Chakales finally retired him on a foul to catcher Clint Courtney in the eighth inning.

Billy Martin batted in four runs with a pair of singles and a grounder, while Bill Skowron contributed a double and two singles to the Yankees' attack.

CLAIR BOROFF

Boroff Off Squad With Broken Leg

The latest spring practice casualty is Clair Boroff, freshman halfback from Grand Island, who is sidelined with a fractured right leg.

Coach Pete Elliott described the injury as a fracture of a small bone in the ankle. Boroff, an all-state back at Grand Island, will be out for the rest of spring drills. He had been running with the third team.

Other injuries were not so serious.

Don Kampe, Red Oak, Ia. letterman guard, suffered a knee strain and will be out one week. John Berryman of Dodgeville, Wis. and Bill Edwards of Wahoo are also sidelined with knee strains.

Boroff is the third top freshman prospect injured in the last five days. Halfback Roger Krhounek and lineman Rich King were hurt in Saturday's scrimmage.

The Huskers spent much of Wednesday's practice time "catching up on things which have been dragging," Elliott said. He mentioned play details and checking assignments as two departments in which the Huskers needed polish.

The rest of the time was spent on pass defense and fundamentals.

Rivera For Wynn Deal Is Denied

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Al Lopez said Wednesday there is no truth to reports the Cleveland Indians had offered to trade pitcher Early Wynn to the Chicago White Sox for outfielder Jim Rivera

"I wouldn't give up Wynn for two Riveras," Lopez said "Wynn is not on the block He is one of the best pitchers we have and I don't intend to tamper with our pitching That s our strength Our pitching staff is the very best in baseball. We re not going to break it up"

The Chicago Tribune said the Indians have been angling for Rivera and that Cleveland General Manager Hank Greenberg started talks with the White Sox by telephone Monday and was due in Chicago to continue the talks today

Reject Tribe Offer

The newspaper said the Sox have rejected Cleveland s offer to give Art Houtteman, 28 year-old, right-handed pitcher for Rivera The Tribune said the Indians feel they need a left handed hitting outfielder since trading Larry Doby to the White Sox for shortstop Chico Carrasquel and outfielder Jim Busby

Lopez said the report was "silly"

"We don t want Rivera Oh, we'd take him if we didn t have to give up much in return, but we are very satisfied with our outfield Why, we have a fellow on the bench, Rocky Colavito, who could help us if we needed another outfielder. I don't care whether he s right handed or left handed"

Heavyweights' 'Series' Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Promoter Jim Norris Wednesday revealed plans for a series of heavyweight elimination bouts to provide a September challenger for champion Rocky Marciano — or a new champ if Marciano retires.

Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, patched up his differences with Al Weill, Marciano's manager, at a "peace dinner" Tuesday night He is waiting a meeting between Weill and Marciano scheduled for Friday at Macon, Ga, before taking any positive steps

"There is a feeling around that Rocky may retire," said Norris "I don't share that feeling. Our position is this If we can show Rocky where he can draw a $500,000 gate in September, we think he will fight It is up to us to come up with a good challenger. We expect a definite word from Rocky within 10 days"

Norris mentioned a May 9 match at Miami between Johnny Holman and Bob Baker as one in a series of eliminations. He said Archie Moore, the light-heavy champ, also was very much in the picture as soon as he had completed his defense against Yolande Pompey in London in June.

Norris also listed Eddie Machen of San Francisco, Johnny Summerlin of Detroit, Willie Pastrano of New Orleans and Sonny Liston of Pittsburgh as young heavies of promise. He seemed particularly high on Machen who whipped Julio Mederos and Nino Valdes among the contenders

"I want Al Weill to say to me, 'Look, I've been with Rocky and he definitely will defend in September if you come up with a real contender'

"Tuesday night I had dinner with Weill and we discussed some of the matches I have been talking about He said he thought they should produce a challenger if Rocky decided to fight"

Long was fined for cutting off a throw to home plate in the ninth inning. Giant pinch-runner Gil Coan scored the tying run from third on Al Dark's fly ball

Shot Put Duel Top Attraction

LAWRENCE Kan (AP) —A sports spectacular — a shot put match the sideliners are comparing to the miracle mile clash of England s Roger Bannister and Australia s John Landy — is on tap at the Kansas Relays Saturday.

Stars of the show will be the University of Kansas' Bill Nieder and Parry O'Brien, former Southern California ace who now is an Air Force lieutenant

Both have shoved the 16-pound iron ball past the one time "impossible" 60-foot barrier, a feat considered in the same category with the 4-minute mile and the 7 foot high jump

Only 4-minute Miles

That's the reason they're likening the Nieder O'Brien duel to the meeting between Bannister and Landy at Vancouver in 1954 At the time, Landy and Bannister were the only men who had run the mile in under 4 minutes.

Bannister won the celebrated race with a furious finish, but both he and Landy beat 4 00

Nieder became the first collegian and the second man in track annals to better 60 feet when he managed a mark of 60 feet 3 inches as Kansas beat Oklahoma A&M, 86-45, in a dual meet here last Saturday A few hours later at Berkeley, Calif, O Brien got off a 60-8½ put.

O'Brien, world record holder at 61-5½, was the first person ever to beat 60-0, but he didn't do it as a collegian Thus Nieder claims the first in-college distinction

Spicing Saturday's program is the chance that, given good weather, Nieder and O'Brien will surpass their previous showings.

O'Brien has been quoted as saying he is looking with relish to the meeting with Nieder. And Nieder, who turned to shot putting after suffering a knee injury that ruined a promising football career, says he is eager to match tosses with the ex-Trojan.

Boyd Scores Unpopular Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Boyd of Chicago second-ranked middleweight Wednesday night defeated Holly Mims of Washington D C, with a split 10 round decision that was thunderously booed by the Chicago Stadium crowd

It was sloppy scrap with much of the action along the ropes

The rangy Boyd nabbing his 10th straight victory, knocked down his stubby opponent for a mandatory eight count with a short right in the sixth round But aside from this the two battlers were tied up in knots most of the time and Referee Bernard Weissman constantly had to separate them.

The holding pushing brawl was scored in favor of Mims 93-90 by Judge John Bray under the Illinois maximum 10-points-per-round system Judge Spike McAdams gave it to Boyd 98 90 and Weissman favored Boyd 97 92

Boyd, who was a 9 5 betting choice outweighed Mims 161 pounds to 156½

The octopus like Boyd had a difficult time finding his target and fanned the air with misses as Mims ducked under his punches Mims beating Boyd to the punch with lightning speed on many occasions landed several good rights In the fourth, the counter-punching veteran from Washington rocked the 22 year-old Boyd with an overhand right

Throughout the third, fourth and fifth rounds Mims was outjabbing his foe despite Boyd s much longer reach

The turning point came in the sixth when Boyd landed his first solid punch.

The right caught Mims flush on the jaw and he bounced onto the canvas But he was up almost immediately, taking the mandatory eight. Mims' handler, Jim Dudley, complained after the round that it was a slip and not a knockdown.

Several times Weissman warned each fighter to mix it up in the nationally televised fight—to quit holding and wrestling.

Shot Put Duel Top Attraction

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) —A sports spectacular — a shot-put match the sideliners are comparing to the miracle mile clash of England's Roger Bannister and Australia's John Landy — is on tap at the Kansas Relays Saturday.

Stars of the show will be the University of Kansas' Bill Nieder, and Parry O'Brien, former Southern California ace who now is an Air Force lieutenant.

Both have shoved the 16-pound iron ball past the one-time "impossible" 60-foot barrier, a feat considered in the same category with the 4-minute mile and the 7-foot high jump.

Nieder, a 220-pound senior, and the 215-pound O'Brien are the only men in history to shatter the 60-foot mark.

Only 4-minute Miles

That's the reason they're likening the Nieder-O'Brien duel to the meeting between Bannister and Landy at Vancouver in 1954. At the time, Landy and Bannister were the only men who had run the mile in under 4 minutes.

Bannister won the celebrated race with a furious finish, but both he and Landy beat 4:00.

Nieder became the first collegian and the second man in track annals to better 60 feet when he managed a mark of 60 feet 3 inches as Kansas beat Oklahoma A&M, 86-45, in a dual meet here last Saturday. A few hours later at Berkeley, Calif., O'Brien got off a 60-8½ put.

O'Brien, world record holder at 61-5½, was the first person ever to beat 60-0, but he didn't do it as a collegian. Thus Nieder claims the first in-college distinction.

Spicing Saturday's program is the chance that, given good weather, Nieder and O'Brien will surpass their previous showings.

O'Brien has been quoted as saying he is looking with relish to the meeting with Nieder. And Nieder, who turned to shot putting after suffering a knee injury that ruined a promising football career, says he is eager to match tosses with the ex-Trojan.

Competitor For Santee Is Found

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Miler Wes Santee, who's had difficulty lining up competition since his lifetime suspension by the AAU, will have competition when he tries to run a 4-minute mile in the special "Military Mile" of the third annual Virginian-Pilot Relays here April 28.

Walt Clarkson, former Dartmouth College track star, Wednesday accepted an invitation to run against America's foremost miler. Clarkson now competes for the Camp Lejeune, N. C., Marines.

Another former Dartmouth distance runner also has filed his entry in the "Military Mile." He's Lt. Bill Gilges of the U.S.S. Henley who graduated from Dartmouth in 1954 and ran with Clarkson on the cross-country team.

Boyd Scores UnpopularWin

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Boyd of Chicago, second-ranked middleweight, Wednesday night defeated Holly Mims of Washington, D. C., with a split 10-round decision that was thunderously booed by the Chicago Stadium crowd.

It was a sloppy scrap with much of the action along the ropes.

The rangy Boyd, nabbing his 10th straight victory, knocked down his stubby opponent for a mandatory eight count with a short right in the sixth round. But aside from this, the two battlers were tied up in knots most of the time and Referee Bernard Weissman constantly had to separate them.

The holding, pushing brawl was scored in favor of Mims 93-90 by Judge John Bray under the Illinois maximum 10-points-per-round system. Judge Spike McAdams gave it to Boyd 98-90 and Weissman favored Boyd 97-92.

Boyd, who was a 9-5 betting choice, outweighed Mims 161 pounds to 156½.

The octopus-like Boyd had a difficult time finding his target and fanned the air with misses as Mims ducked under his punches. Mims, beating Boyd to the punch with lightning speed on many occasions, landed several good rights. In the fourth, the counter-punching veteran from Washington rocked the 22-year-old Boyd with an overhand right.

Throughout the third, fourth and fifth rounds, Mims was outjabbing his foe despite Boyd's much longer reach.

The turning point came in the sixth when Boyd landed his first solid punch.

The right caught Mims flush on the jaw and he bounced onto the canvas. But he was up almost immediately, taking the mandatory eight. Mims' handler, Jim Dudley, complained after the round that it was a slip and not a knockdown.

Several times Weissman warned each fighter to mix it up in the nationally televised fight—to quit holding and wrestling.

Disgruntled Alabamans To Meet Director Today

TUSCALOOSA, Ala (AP)—Nearly 100 disgruntled University of Alabama athletes meet with Athletic Director Hank Crisp today to discuss their demands for less stringent dormitory rules

They walked out of Friedman Hall, special dormitory for athletes Tuesday night This action followed the dismissal from the football squad of Roy Vickery, Atlanta, Ga, tackle who was involved in an automobile accident at 3 a m Sunday

Dan Coyle of Birmingham, an end on the 1954 and 1955 football teams who dropped off the squad before 1956 spring practice, heads a committee representing the players

"Treated Like Children"

He said the walkout was because "rules are too strict" and athletes are "treated like children."

The players drew up five "demands" Coyle said the students would drop out of athletics, and some might leave school unless the demands are granted.

Crisp was optimistic. He said he was confident "everything will be worked out. There really isn't much difference between what they are asking and what they have now"

Present Demands

The athletes demanded

Reinstatement of Vickery and any other boys involved in the Sunday morning accident. (It involved five other athletes, some with eligibility left, but no action has been announced in their cases)

No bed check out of season. (Coaches check to see if the athletes are in bed at 11 p m on week nights, 12 30 a m Sundays and 11 30 Sunday night).

No restrictions on seniors, managers, etc, after their seasons are completed.

Relaxing of the nightly restrictions to rooms for study on week nights

Freedom to leave the campus during weekends for the off-season for athletes. (They now must get permission to leave Tuscaloosa)

Most of the athletes spent last night with friends after leaving the dormitory where holders of athletic scholarships normally are housed

Coyle said they would "make no concessions, if they (the school authorities) say 'yes' to our demands, we'll move back If they say 'no' the fellows will quit sports"

Most of those involved hold four-year standard Southeastern Conference grants-in aid. The scholarships supply athletes with room, board, books, fees, medical attention and $15 monthly for laundry expense.

Peterson To Speak To Cage Champs

Dr Irvin Peterson, Nebraska Wesleyan basketball coach, will be the guest speaker at the Tabernacle Christian basketball dinner Friday, at 6 15 at the church

Twenty-five players, who were members of the Class A and Class C city championship teams will receive individual trophies. One member of each team will also receive a sportsmanship award. Durward Van Cleave is the "A" team coach, and Bill McDermet coaches the "C" team.

Sky Sox Hopes Not Dimmed By Loss Of Batting Champion

By AL GOLDFARB

Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo (AP)—A team just doesn't lose its inspirational leader — Sam Hairston — who also led the Western League in batting with a 350 mark, and such powerful left handed sluggers as Ron Cooper and Ken Landenberger with out suffering somewhat.

Despite this plight. Manager Jack Conway isn't pessimistic about the chances of his Colorado Springs Sky Sox to make a good showing in this year's pennant chase

The Sox skipper, a drawling, likeable Texan who will be at the helm for the second year, guided the Sox to the 1955 Western League pennant.

Conway will miss Hairston, Landenberger and Cooper, a trio which consistently tore down the fences last year, but the Sox pilot is impressed with the power he's seen thus far in spring camp at Hollywood, Fla.

"They look pretty good ... they're young but fast . speed is something we didn't have last year . and we've got some good long ball hitters ... I'd say right now we have a better club than we had last year at this same time"

Those were Conway's words after three weeks of spring drills

Both Conway and Sox General Manager Lew Matlin point out that while the Sox appear to be strong this year, the rest of the league will be equally strong. Both expect a knock-down pennant race in the eight-team league.

Replacing Hairston behind the plate is Conway's biggest job At present he is waiting for Memphis to trim its roster, which numbers three good receivers. Charley Schaflernoth is a likely candidate for the job, since he batted .316 at Bisbee-Douglas last year

The pitching staff is shaping up as one of the strongest points for the defending league champions Rookie Tom Richards, who compiled a 17 10 record with a mediocre Superior team, is the most impressive newcomer of the lot Others looking good include Florian Ackley, 16-4 at Dubuque Bill Knapek, 10-13 at Dubuque; Russ Heman, out of service, southpaw Rodolfo Arias, 15-8 at Amarillo, and Ray Preston, 5-9 at Bisbee-Douglas.

Returnees from last year's mound staff include Gar Brill (8-7) Chuck Selby (4-4) and Bob Hattenbach (7 3).

Another pitcher who is well known around the Western League as a shortstop is expected to aid the Sox cause. He's Bobby Winkles, who hit 286 last year while covering shortstop. This year, though, he'll see action as a hurler, after looking good in spring camp in that capacity.

Don Bacon, who batted 288 last year after joining the Sox from Oklahoma A&M late in the year, joins Winkles and will probably get the shortstop position, although he played third last year and can also perform at second.

Newcomers Bob Sagers a 291 hitter at Waterloo last year, and Jerry Olesko, a 287 batter at Superior last year can play third and second, respectively

First base is the only other real serious question mark besides catching. Dick Patton and Mel Grable are handling the sack at present, but there is a likelihood that Memphis could supply the Sox with Dick Means, a .270 hitter at Waterloo last year. Means also plays the outfield.

Freedom to leave the campus during weekends for the off-season for athletes. (They now must get permission to leave Tuscaloosa).

Most of the athletes spent last night with friends after leaving the dormitory where holders of athletic scholarships normally are housed.

Coyle said they would "make no concessions, if they (the school authorities) say 'yes' to our demands, we'll move back. If they say 'no' the fellows will quit sports."

Most of those involved hold four-year standard Southeastern Conference grants-in-aid. The scholarships supply athletes with room, board, books, fees, medical attention and $15 monthly for laundry expense.

Peterson To Speak To Cage Champs

Dr. Irvin Peterson, Nebraska Wesleyan basketball coach, will be the guest speaker at the Tabernacle Christian basketball dinner Friday, at 6:15 at the church.

Twenty-five players, who were members of the Class A and Class C city championship teams will receive individual trophies. One member of each team will also receive a sportsmanship award. Durward Van Cleave is the "A" team coach, and Bill McDermet coaches the "C" team.

Sky Sox Hopes Not Dimmed By Loss Of Batting Champion

By AL GOLDFARB
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—A team just doesn't lose its inspirational leader — Sam Hairston — who also led the Western League in batting with a .350 mark, and such powerful left-handed sluggers as Ron Cooper and Ken Landenberger with out suffering somewhat.

Despite this plight, Manager Jack Conway isn't pessimistic about the chances of his Colorado Springs Sky Sox to make a good showing in this year's pennant chase.

The Sox skipper, a drawling, likeable Texan who will be at the helm for the second year, guided the Sox to the 1955 Western League pennant.

Conway will miss Hairston, Landenberger and Cooper, a trio which consistently tore down the fences last year, but the Sox pilot is impressed with the power he's seen thus far in spring camp at Hollywood, Fla.

"They look pretty good ... they're young but fast ... speed is something we didn't have last year ... and we've got some good long ball hitters ... I'd say right now we have a better club than we had last year at this same time."

Those were Conway's words after three weeks of spring drills.

Both Conway and Sox General Manager Lew Matlin point out that while the Sox appear to be strong this year, the rest of the league will be equally strong. Both expect a knock-down pennant race in the eight-team league.

Replacing Hairston behind the plate is Conway's biggest job. At present, he is waiting for Memphis to trim its roster, which numbers three good receivers. Charley Schaffernoth is a likely candidate for the job, since he batted .316 at Bisbee-Douglas last year.

The pitching staff is shaping up as one of the strongest points for the defending league champions. Rookie Tom Richards, who compiled a 17-10 record with a mediocre Superior team, is the most impressive newcomer of the lot. Others looking good include: Florian Ackley, 16-4 at Dubuque; Bill Knapek, 10-13 at Dubuque; Russ Heman, out of service; southpaw Rodolfo Arias, 15-8, at Amarillo, and Ray Preston, 5-9 at Bisbee-Douglas.

Returnees from last year's mound staff include Gar Brill (8-7), Chuck Selby (4-4) and Bob Hattenbach (7-3).

Another pitcher who is well known around the Western League as a shortstop is expected to aid the Sox cause. He's Bobby Winkles, who hit .286 last year while covering shortstop. This year, though, he'll see action as a hurler, after looking good in spring camp in that capacity.

Don Bacon, who batted .288 last year after joining the Sox from Oklahoma A&M late in the year, joins Winkles and will probably get the shortstop position, although he played third last year and can also perform at second.

Newcomers Bob Sagers, a .291 hitter at Waterloo last year, and Jerry Olesko, a .287 batter at Superior last year can play third and second, respectively.

First base is the only other real serious question mark besides catching. Dick Patton and Mel Grable are handling the sack at present, but there is a likelihood that Memphis could supply the Sox with Dick Means, a .270 hitter at Waterloo last year. Means also plays the outfield.

She Was 'First And Only Love'—

Artie Shaw Divorced For 7th Time

LAS VEGAS, Nev (INS)—Actress Doris Dowling, 32, Wednesday became the seventh ex wife of clarinetist Artie Shaw, who once called her his "first and only love."

Miss Dowling, mother of a 2 year-old son, Jonathan, entered the usual complaint in Nevada, mental cruelty, and had the usual brief hearing, in which she charged that her marriage to Shaw was so stormy that her health was impaired.

Artie Shaw

Shaw, the clarinet tooter whose past wives include screen beauties Lana Turner and Ava Gardner, writer Kathleen Windsor, Betty Kern, Margaret Allen and Martha Kemp, was not in court to witness the end of his seventh attempt at matrimony.

He and Miss Dowling were married June 19, 1952, at New Canaan, Conn.

At that time he beamed that he had always rushed into marriage before, but that in Miss Dowling's case he had announced his good intentions seven months before the ceremony.

"This isn't going to be a marriage," he said before the wedding, "until we're quite sure it will be a success."

Shaw and Miss Dowling have been separated for some time.

Gov. Meyner Real Demo Winner In New Jersey's Primary Vote

By JAMES DEVLIN

NEWARK, N. J. (AP) — Gov Robert B. Meyner, a dark horse possibility for the Democratic presidential or vice presidential nomination, emerged Wednesday as the party's real winner in New Jersey's primary

Gov Meyner

President Eisenhower rolled to victory on the Republican side over token opposition and was assured of the party's 38 delegate votes

Meyner led an unpledged slate of Democratic convention delegates that administered a smashing defeat to Sen Estes Kefauver a presidential hopeful and a consistent thorn to organization Democrats

Estes Got Just ½

In the delegate balloting, the young bachelor governor's forces garnered 35½ of the state's 36 convention votes Kefauver got ½ vote The Tennessean had campaigned vigorously in the state for six days and had said he expected to get at least 10 votes

The results boosted Meyner's political stock and gave Kefauver the worst setback of his campaign for the presidential nomination at the party's August convention in Chicago Kefauver, in a telegram to Meyner, congratulated him on a "tremendous victory"

Kefauver's setback was emphasized also in Eisenhower's almost 3 to 1 vote in the "popularity" phase of the voting

Returns from 3 863 of the state's 4 155 voting districts gave Eisenhower 307 040 and Kefauver 108 009.

Eisenhower's vote topped Kefauver's in 20 of the state's 21 counties — all except heavily Democratic Hudson

In Washington Eisenhower expressed "warm thanks."

Kefauver, campaigning in California, said he had "no excuses no alibis" for his New Jersey defeat

'Didn't Do Very Well'

"I just didn't do very well in New Jersey," he told a news conference "We tried and we didn't succeed" Of Meyner, he said

"I think the vote was a tribute to him and his organization"

Asked how he thought the New Jersey outcome would affect his vote in the California primary June 5, Kefauver said

"I don't think it did me any good But we take them as they come"

$2 Billion U.S. Budget Surplus Is Predicted

. . . By House-Senate Group

WASHINGTON (AP)—An estimate that the federal income and outgo budget will show a surplus of about two billion dollars in the fiscal year ending next June 30 came Wednesday from the staff of the Senate House Economic Committee.

This compares with the 230 million dollars in surplus which President Eisenhower estimated in January.

The congressional economists said that reports through mid April indicate "that the federal budget will show an administrative surplus of about two billion dollars and a cash surplus of perhaps four billion dollars for this fiscal year."

Tied To Budget

The administrative surplus is the one tied to what is ordinarily spoken of as the federal budget covering operating spending and [illegible]. The cash surplus would reflect collections for Social Security and other trust funds.

The economic memorandum did not hold out any prospect for tax cuts as a result of its higher surplus estimate. It also said there are some inflationary dangers to guard against.

On taxes it said:

"Although long-term projections indicate the possibilities of tax reductions, the emergence at this time of a surplus either anticipated or greater than originally anticipated is not persuasive as to the wisdom of tax reduction in the face of a booming economy already pressing the limit of immediate resources and fanned by a variety of upward drafts."

On inflation the report took note of "recent rises in industrial prices, stock market prices, inventory accumulation, and bank credit expansion." It elaborated:

"The force of these upward pressures, coupled with foreseeable further increases in steel and other prices, freight rates, and wage rates tend to fan inflationary forces into a speculative over exuberance which increases the risks of reversal if allowed to run undampened."

Income Up $3 Billion

The economists said they estimated that government income this fiscal year will be about 3 billion dollars more than the 64½ billion estimated in January.

They also figured that spending will be about a billion higher.

At the time the January estimates were made Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey conceded they might be "unduly conservative."

Israel And Egypt Accept Cease-Fire

. . . Hammarskjold Gets Agreement From Both

JERUSALEM (INS)—Israel and Egypt were reported Wednesday night to have agreed to issue formal cease-fire orders and sharply reduce military patrols along the trigger-cocked border.

An Israeli official said United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold had obtained agreement from both sides to issue formal cease-fire instructions to their troops.

An informal cease-fire went into effect shortly after the recent border duel between Israeli and Egyptian artillery, in which many Arabs on Egypt's side of the Gaza front were killed and wounded.

An official announcement on the cease-fire agreement was expected Thursday. Hammarskjold refused comment on the Israeli official's disclosure that agreement already had been reached.

(In Washington, U.S. officials were encouraged by developments in the Jerusalem peace negotiations. One said: "The most important thing now is to get them (Egypt and Israel) to agree to try to agree on the big issues.")

Israel's agreement was reported after the second day of talks between Hammarskjold and Premier David Ben-Gurion in Jerusalem.

Informants said Ben-Gurion told the U.N. chief his government had adopted the policy that "peace is better than victory." Ben-Gurion was said to have stressed this several times in the talks.

Hypothermia Is Used On Lincoln Child

OMAHA (AP)—Three-year-old Gail Williams is recovering from a heart defect operation performed with the aid of hypothermia.

Gail is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Williams of Lincoln.

Before surgery, Gail was submerged in ice cold water and her temperature lowered well below the normal 98.6 degrees.

The "frozen sleep" process slows the rate of the body's functions making it possible for surgeons to work in a bloodless field.

Gail's trouble was a hole about the size of your forefinger between the two upper chambers of the heart.

As a result blood from the lungs which should have been pumped to the body was instead back-flowing to the lungs.

The girl's heart lay open without blood for five minutes and 15 seconds during a four-hour operation.

This is the first time an operation with the aid of hypothermia has been performed on so young a patient in Omaha.

Pollution Costly

51-BILLION HIGHWAY BUILDING BILL READY

. . . Stage Set For House Action Next Week

WASHINGTON (INS)—The house public works committee finished work on a 51-billion dollar road building proposal and prepared to send it to the House for action next week.

The record-breaking authorization bill was approved by a voice vote. Committee spokesmen said there may be minority views by some members who object to certain provision of the measure.

The bill, which was requested by President Eisenhower, has the endorsement of leaders of both parties.

House approval seemed assured after the committee added provisions meeting the objections of groups such as the trucking industry which successfully opposed similar legislation last year.

Besides authorizing construction during the next 13 years of a 40,000-mile network of superhighways, the bill also would raise taxes on trucks, buses, gasoline, diesel fuel, and tires to help pay the federal government's share in the cost of the program.

The interstate highway system would link all 48 states and would cross the capital cities of 42 of them. The interstate system would cost a total of $27,750,000,000, of which the federal government would put up 25 billion.

The bill also calls for continued aid to states to improve primary, secondary and urban roads. The federal share in this program would go up 25 million dollars a year. Both the U. S. and the states would spend 11½-billion dollars on this program over a 13-year period.

Ex-Soviet Says Stalin Was Spy For Czarist Cops

NEW YORK (AP)—Alexander Orlov, former Soviet secret police commissar who has lived in hiding in the United States nearly 20 years, said Wednesday Joseph Stalin was a Czarist police spy before the revolution and a homosexual. He did not elaborate on the charge of homosexualism.

Orlov made his statement at a news conference. With his wife and daughter he fled in 1938 to Canada and the United States from Spain where he had been a Soviet intelligence adviser to the Spanish Loyalist government. He said he defected because he feared he would be purged.

Orlov made the accusation that Stalin was a Czarist police agent in an article appearing in Life magazine.

In another Life article, writer Isaac Don Levine presented a document allegedly taken from Czarist secret files describing Stalin as a police informer. Levine told of his efforts to discover whether this document, which he first saw in 1947, was authentic.

Israel And Egypt Accept Cease-Fire

. . . Hammarskjold Gets Agreement From Both

JERUSALEM (INS)—Israel and Egypt were reported Wednesday night to have agreed to issue formal cease-fire orders and sharply reduce military patrols along the trigger-cocked border.

An Israeli official said United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold had obtained agreement from both sides to issue formal cease-fire instructions to their troops.

An informal cease-fire went into effect shortly after the recent border duel between Israeli and Egyptian artillery, in which many Arabs on Egypt's side of the Gaza front were killed and wounded.

An official announcement on the cease-fire agreement was expected Thursday. Hammarskjold refused comment on the Israeli official's disclosure that agreement already had been reached.

(In Washington, U.S. officials were encouraged by developments in the Jerusalem peace negotiations. One said: "The most important thing now is to get them (Egypt and Israel) to agree to try to agree on the big issues.")

Hammarskjold, in his Cairo talks with Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser, obtained Egypt's agreement on a formal cease-fire and reduction of border patrols to the bare minimum provided Israel consented.

Israel's agreement was reported after the second day of talks between Hammarskjold and Premier David Ben-Gurion in Jerusalem.

Informants said Ben-Gurion told the U.N. chief his government had adopted the policy that "peace is better than victory." Ben-Gurion was said to have stressed this several times in the talks.

Hypothermia Is Used On Lincoln Child

OMAHA (AP)—Three-year-old Gail Williams is recovering from a heart defect operation performed with the aid of hypothermia.

Gail is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Williams of Lincoln.

Before surgery, Gail was submerged in ice cold water and her temperature lowered well below the normal 98.6 degrees.

The "frozen sleep" process slows the rate of the body's functions making it possible for surgeons to work in a bloodless field.

Gail's trouble was a hole about the size of your forefinger between the two upper chambers of the heart.

As a result blood from the lungs which should have been pumped to the body was instead back-flowing to the lungs.

The girl's heart lay open without blood for five minutes and 15 seconds during a four-hour operation.

This is the first time an operation with the aid of hypothermia has been performed on so young a patient in Omaha.

Pollution Costly

NEW YORK (AP)—A pollution expert estimated that air pollution costs New York City 100 million dollars a year. Dr. Leonard Greenburg, commission of air pollution control, said the costly by-products of pollution include health and cleaning bills and disrupted air traffic.

51-BILLION HIGHWAY BUILDING BILL READY

. . . Stage Set For House Action Next Week

WASHINGTON (INS)—The house public works committee finished work on a 51-billion dollar road building proposal and prepared to send it to the House for action next week.

The record-breaking authorization bill was approved by a voice vote. Committee spokesmen said there may be minority views by some members who object to certain provision of the measure.

The bill, which was requested by President Eisenhower, has the endorsement of leaders of both parties.

House approval seemed assured after the committee added provisions meeting the objections of groups such as the trucking industry which successfully opposed similar legislation last year.

Besides authorizing construction during the next 13 years of a 40,000-mile network of superhighways, the bill also would raise taxes on trucks, buses, gasoline, diesel fuel, and tires to help pay the federal government's share in the cost of the program.

The interstate highway system would link all 48 states and would cross the capital cities of 42 of them. The interstate system would cost a total of $27,750,000,000, of which the federal government would put up 25 billion.

The bill also calls for continued aid to states to improve primary, secondary and urban roads. The federal share in this program would go up 25 million dollars a year. Both the U. S. and the states would spend 11½-billion dollars on this program over a 13-year period.

Ex-Soviet Says Stalin Was Spy For Czarist Cops

NEW YORK (AP)—Alexander Orlov, former Soviet secret police commissar who has lived in hiding in the United States nearly 20 years, said Wednesday Joseph Stalin was a Czarist police spy before the revolution and a homosexual. He did not elaborate on the charge of homosexualism.

Orlov made his statement at a news conference. With his wife and daughter he fled in 1938 to Canada and the United States from Spain where he had been a Soviet intelligence adviser to the Spanish Loyalist government. He said he defected because he feared he would be purged.

Orlov made the accusation that Stalin was a Czarist police agent in an article appearing in Life magazine.

Missing Wahoo Man Found Dead; Ruled As Suicide

WAHOO, Neb. — John S. Barry, 42, of Wahoo, was found dead in his car Wednesday afternoon in a field on the farm of Gordon Nelson, two miles west and a half mile south of Wahoo. He had been missing since Sunday.

Sheriff Joe Divis said Barry's death was a suicide. There will be no inquest.

Divis said Barry had attached a tube through the floor of the car leading from the exhaust pipe and was found slumped on the floor by the back seat.

The sheriff said Barry had been in failing health.

Glen Anderson, an employe on the Nelson farm, found the body when he went out to plow.

Mr. Barry was a longtime resident of Wahoo and was a retired farmer. He is survived by his wife and two teen-age children.

All Grains Steady Except Old Soys

CHICAGO (AP)—All grains except old crop soybeans ended firm on the Board of Trade Wednesday after spending much of the session aimless backing and filling.

New crop wheat was strongest as dry weather continued in much of the winter wheat belt. Corn eased early but before the finish both July and September had set new seasonal highs.

Oats made their best gains in many days following the upward trend of corn. Rye and new crop soybeans scored modest gains.

Wheat closed 1 to 1⅝ higher, corn unchanged to 1⅛ higher, oats ½-⅞ higher and rye ½-¾ higher.

Soybeans closed 1 cent lower to ¾ higher and lard 5 to 20 cents a hundred pounds lower.

There was not a great deal of news in wheat, aside from the dry weather, but exports were expected to increase shortly with Formosa scheduled to buy 1,000,000 bushels, Turkey 1,800,000 bushels and Finland 1,250,000 bushels.

Old crop soybeans eased although Spain purchased 2,668,000 pounds of refined soybean oil. The new crop weakened early but came back later.

Some grainmen felt providing supports on corn grown outside allocations would shift some acreage from soybeans to corn.

Mart Ends Lower; Trading Selective

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market tried its best to advance Wednesday but finally closed lower.

Prices were slightly higher throughout the day in the bulk of the list with a handful of leaders moving extreme amounts either way.

The spread amounted to $3 or $4 with some stocks showing even wider changes.

Steels, oils and railroads provided the main prop for the market. Aircrafts were down and there were heavy losers in the non-ferrous metals and chemicals.

Motors and utilities were fairly steady and the radio-televisions were higher.

Wednesday's volume was 2,470,000 shares, compared with 2,330,000 Tuesday.

A great amount of Wednesday's trading was selective in the light of numerous annual meetings and reports on first quarter profits.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 40 cents at $188.10. The industrial component was down $1.60 but railroads were up 50 cents and utilities unchanged.

The American Stock Exchange was mixed on volume of 1,130,000 shares, compared with 1,000,000 Tuesday.

All Grains Steady Except Old Soys

CHICAGO (AP)—All grains except old crop soybeans ended firm on the Board of Trade Wednesday after spending much of the session aimless backing and filling.

New crop wheat was strongest as dry weather continued in much of the winter wheat belt. Corn eased early but before the finish both July and September had set new seasonal highs.

Oats made their best gains in many days, following the upward trend of corn. Rye and new crop soybeans scored modest gains.

Wheat closed 1 to 1¾ higher, corn unchanged to 1⅛ higher, oats ½-⅞ higher and rye ½-¾ higher.

Soybeans closed 1 cent lower to ¾ higher and lard 5 to 20 cents a hundred pounds lower.

There was not a great deal of news in wheat, aside from the dry weather, but exports were expected to increase shortly with Formosa scheduled to buy 1,000,000 bushels, Turkey 1,800,000 bushels and Finland 1,250,000 bushels.

Old crop soybeans eased although Spain purchased 2,668,000 pounds of refined soybean oil. The new crop weakened early but came back later.

Some grainmen felt providing supports on corn grown outside allocations would shift some acreage from soybeans to corn.

Missing Wahoo Man Found Dead; Ruled As Suicide

WAHOO, Neb. — John S. Barry, 42, of Wahoo, was found dead in his car Wednesday afternoon in a field on the farm of Gordon Nelson, two miles west and a half mile south of Wahoo. He had been missing since Sunday.

Sheriff Joe Divis said Barry's death was a suicide. There will be no inquest.

Divis said Barry had attached a tube through the floor of the car leading from the exhaust pipe and was found slumped on the floor by the back seat.

The sheriff said Barry had been in failing health.

Glen Anderson, an employe on the Nelson farm, found the body when he went out to plow.

Mr. Barry was a longtime resident of Wahoo and was a retired farmer. He is survived by his wife and two teen-age children.

Jovial, Restless Harry Truman Says He's Calm About Margaret's Wedding

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Harry S. Truman, father of the bride-to-be, insisted Wednesday he is calm about the whole affair.

"What I'm trying to do," he told reporters, "is to keep the women folks that way."

The former President referred to Mrs. Truman—whom he calls "The Boss"—and daughter, Margaret, concert and radio-TV star who will be married Saturday to Clifton Daniel, assistant foreign editor of The New York Times.

The ceremony takes place in the Trumans' home town of nearby Independence, Mo., in the same Episcopal church in which 37 years ago Truman married the blonde girl whose schoolbooks he used to carry.

Jovial, Restless

Truman was in a jovial, if somewhat restless mood, today as he welcomed at his office reporters he had known in Washington when he was in the White House.

Every now and then he was interrupted by a telephone call. Once it was Mrs. Truman, and he dutifully promised: "I'll 'tend to it."

He admittedly put in some phone calls to expedite preparations for the reception that will be held at the Truman home after the wedding. Rose Conway, his personal secretary in the White House, as well as here, said, "The President really is calm—he wants everything to be just right."

Truman, standing by the door, suddenly turned serious. He was speaking for himself and his "women folks" when he said:

Solemn And Serious

"We want the wedding to be very solemn and serious—because it is."

A moment later his tone turned gay again and he was asked what he would wear at the wedding ceremony.

"The same striped pants suit I wore to diplomatic functions in the White House," he said.

The groom-to-be arrives at Independence Thursday and there is a big family party scheduled in the evening. This is for him to meet, and be looked over, by Margaret's aunts, uncles and cousins.

Mrs. Truman said Daniel will stay at the Truman home, as will his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Daniel Sr., Zebulon, N. C., who will arrive on Friday.

MAMA INSURING QUIET

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (INS)—Margaret Truman came home to get a week's rest and relaxation before her wedding Saturday and she's getting it — courtesy of mama.

The 32-year-old daughter bride-to-be is seeing only the people she wants to see and talking to the people she wants to talk to on the telephone. Her mother, Mrs. Bess Truman, is standing protective guard over her only chick.

Mrs. Truman apparently is bent on keeping secret more than just the details of her daughter's wedding gown, a confection of 200-year-old beige lace and tulle designed by Nicole Fontana of Rome, Italy.

She declined to describe her own dress for the wedding.

"That will come out Saturday and not before," she declared.

She also refused to disclose what kind of flowers have been selected for Trinity Episcopal Church, site of the 15-minute nuptials, or for the picturesque white-framed Truman home, where the reception will be held.

Mrs. Truman did say the flowers would not be the same as those which she bedecked the church when she herself was married there 37 years ago. She explained:

"The seasons are different. I was married in June, and this is April."

Asked whether there will be champagne to toast the bride and groom, Mrs. Truman replied:

"Yes, that's very important. Although my WCTU friends from all over the country probably will be writing me about it."

'B.C.' MONEY FEATURE OF COIN DISPLAY

. . . Of Lincolnite

A collection of coins dating from 490 B.C. to 1955 A.D. is on display at the State Historical Society Museum.

The private collection of Elmer G. Nelson of 3126 Shirley Court, Lincoln, is featured as part of National Coin Week activities.

The collection contains Greek and Roman coins, examples of the coinage of most European countries as well as such oddities as primitive money from the Far East.

Primitive money includes knife-money, Chinese shoe-money and Siamese bullet money. Various primitive societies used the real articles for barter then gradually began to make coin replicas of knives and other trading "money."

Bullet-Money

The bullet-money for instance is in the shape of a musket-ball.

Also shown are steel arrowheads which were traded by white men to the American Indians. American coins include the $20 gold piece.

Almost every phase of coin collecting is represented according to Nelson in the more than 220 coins on the boards.

Nelson is a charter member and past president of the Lincoln Coin Club. He has been collecting coins for about ten years.

Trophies are awarded to coin clubs for outstanding Coin Week activities by the National Coin Club. "The Lincoln club has placed in the top ten each year since the local club was founded," Nelson said. The club took first place in the nation among Class B cities last year he added.

The Nelson collection will be on display in the Collectors' Corner of the Museum throughout April.

Fourteen-year-old Steven Tempero, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tempero of 2924 Jackson, was named winner of the Sunrise Optimist oratorical contest.

Runnerup was Michael Keedy, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Keedy of 1505½ S St.

The speeches, on the theme of "Freedom — Our Most Precious Heritage," were made in local club competition.

In business action, all incumbent officers of the club with the exception of the vice president who has moved from the city, were re-elected.

E. C. Beights is president of the club, which was organized less than a year ago. Herman Hempel was named vice-president, to replace Rick Weaver who has moved to Wichita, Kan.

Other officers are Don Boldt, vice president; Marvin Klooz, secretary-treasurer; Donald Nelson, Orville Van Hook, Dr. James Burlington and Jack Sittner, directors.

Vandals Shoot Up Sprayer, Tractor

Sheriff's officers were investigating Wednesday the shooting up of a tractor and tank sprayer on the Lawrence Crouse farm near Martell.

Crouse, who lives at 2928 T, reported the tractor and sprayer were peppered with .22 slugs and heavily damaged. The tractor radiator and attached sprayer were punctured several times.

All four tires on the tractor were flattened with the slugs.

Jovial, Restless Harry Truman Says He's Calm About Margaret's Wedding

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Harry S. Truman, father of the bride-to-be, insisted Wednesday he is calm about the whole affair.

"What I'm trying to do," he told reporters, "is to keep the women folks that way."

The former President referred to Mrs. Truman—whom he calls "The Boss"—and daughter, Margaret, concert and radio-TV star who will be married Saturday to Clifton Daniel, assistant foreign editor of The New York Times.

The ceremony takes place in the Trumans' home town of nearby Independence, Mo. in the same Episcopal church in which 37 years ago Truman married the blonde girl whose schoolbooks he used to carry.

Jovial, Restless

Truman was in a jovial, if somewhat restless mood, today as he welcomed at his office reporters he had known in Washington when he was in the White House.

Every now and then he was interrupted by a telephone call. Once it was Mrs. Truman, and he dutifully promised: "I'll 'tend to it."

He admittedly put in some phone calls to expedite preparations for the reception that will be held at the Truman home after the wedding. Rose Conway, his personal secretary in the White House, as well as here, said, "The President really is calm—he wants everything to be just right."

Truman, standing by the door, suddenly turned serious. He was speaking for himself and his "women folks" when he said:

Solemn And Serious

"We want the wedding to be very solemn and serious—because it is."

A moment later his tone turned gay again and he was asked what he would wear at the wedding ceremony.

"The same striped pants suit I wore to diplomatic functions in the White House," he said.

The groom-to-be arrives at Independence Thursday and there is a big family party scheduled in the evening. This is for him to meet, and be looked over, by Margaret's aunts, uncles and cousins.

Mrs. Truman said Daniel will stay at the Truman home, as will his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Daniel Sr., Zebulon, N. C., who will arrive on Friday.

MAMA INSURING QUIET

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (INS)—Margaret Truman came home to get a week's rest and relaxation before her wedding Saturday and she's getting it — courtesy of mama.

The 32-year-old daughter bride-to-be is seeing only the people she wants to see and talking to the people she wants to talk to on the telephone. Her mother, Mrs. Bess Truman, is standing protective guard over her only chick.

Mrs. Truman apparently is bent on keeping secret more than just the details of her daughter's wedding gown, a confection of 200-year-old beige lace and tulle designed by Nicole Fontana of Rome, Italy.

She declined to describe her own dress for the wedding.

"That will come out Saturday and not before," she declared.

She also refused to disclose what kind of flowers have been selected for Trinity Episcopal Church, site of the 15-minute nuptials, or for the picturesque white-framed Truman home, where the reception will be held.

Mrs. Truman did say the flowers would not be the same as those which she bedecked the church when she herself was married there 37 years ago. She explained:

"The seasons are different. I was married in June, and this is April."

Asked whether there will be champagne to toast the bride and groom, Mrs. Truman replied:

"Yes, that's very important. Although my WCTU friends from all over the country probably will be writing me about it."

'B.C.' MONEY FEATURE OF COIN DISPLAY

. . . Of Lincolnite

A collection of coins dating from 490 B.C. to 1955 A.D. is on display at the State Historical Society Museum.

The private collection of Elmer G. Nelson of 3126 Shirley Court, Lincoln, is featured as part of National Coin Week activities.

The collection contains Greek and Roman coins, examples of the coinage of most European countries as well as such oddities as primitive money from the Far East.

Primitive money includes knife-money, Chinese shoe-money and Siamese bullet money. Various primitive societies used the real articles for barter then gradually began to make coin replicas of knives and other trading "money."

Bullet-Money

The bullet-money for instance is in the shape of a musket-ball.

Also shown are steel arrowheads which were traded by white men to the American Indians. American coins include the $20 gold piece.

Almost every phase of coin collecting is represented according to Nelson in the more than 220 coins on the boards.

Nelson is a charter member and past president of the Lincoln Coin Club. He has been collecting coins for about ten years.

Trophies are awarded to coin clubs for outstanding Coin Week activities by the National Coin Club. "The Lincoln club has placed in the top ten each year since the local club was founded," Nelson said. The club took first place in the nation among Class B cities last year he added.

The Nelson collection will be on display in the Collectors' Corner of the Museum throughout April.
